The Harris Survey

Barry Gains in South

In a just-completed survey of a cross-section of American voters, Sen. Barry Goldwater has gained 10 percentage points in his race against President Johnson, as compared with the standings before the Republican convention.

However, Democrat Johnson still leads Republican

Goldwater by 64-36 percent. And this is still the widest lead enjoyed by any candidate for president in modern times at this stage of a campaign. Significantly, however, Goldwater has now surged into a clear lead in the south.

The same voters who were surveyed on the eve of the recent Republican convention were questioned immediately following Goldwater's acceptance speech. They were asked to express their choice between President Johnson and Senator Goldwater on the assumption that Governor Wallace of Alabama was not a candidate.

President Johnson's total has fallen from a high of 72 per cent, down 11 points to 61 per cent, before the undecided vote is allocated. Senator Goldwater has gained nine points, rising from 22 to 31 per cent. Of the current eight per cent who have not made up their minds, five per cent have a dominant Republican voting background, while the remaining three per cent tend to be more Democratic in their orientation.

In the first breakdown of 64-36 per cent, the undecided have been allotted on the basis of their past voting behavior.

The regional patterns show gains for the new GOP nominee in every section of the country. However, Goldwater's most spectacular advances have been scored in the south.

Results by Regions

Post-Convention		Johnson Goldwater
East	74%	26%
Midwest	64	36
South	45	55
West	69	31

Pre-Convention
East	80	20
Midwest	74	26
South	61	39
West	80	20

The sizable Goldwater gain in the south—a full 16 points in less than three weeks—is a sharp contrast to the small advance in the east, where Goldwater has moved up only six points.

In all cases, these shifts represent actual changes in attitudes by the same voters who were interviewed before the convention in San Francisco. Their new attitude shows how dramatically voters change their minds in the course of campaigns. This survey represents public opinion as of now. As the campaign unfolds, further shifts—one way or another—will be spotted and analyzed.

At any rate, in the days immediately following his nomination as the GOP standard-bearer Senator Goldwater has narrowed the wide gap that had existed between himself and Mr. Johnson. There is still a full 30-

Pickpockets Offer 'Insurance'

TOKYO (UPI) — Police reports arrests of 65 pickpockets in an attempt to clean up the city in advance of the Olympic Games.

A spokesman said Tokyo's pickpockets are "among the world's cleverest," and are well organized that their leaders are arranging to offer a selected number as "scapegoats" with plans to provide for their families until they are released.

FBI Moves In

RIOTS SPREAD TO BROOKLYN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Club-swinging riot police clashed with hundreds of unruly Negroes in a racially-troubled area of Brooklyn Tuesday, firing gunshots into the air as they dodged bottles hurled from the mob.

At the same time, police suddenly sealed off a large section of Harlem, scene of racial violence which caused bloodshed for three previous nights, when unruly crowds began gathering at intersections.

The incidents came just hours after President Johnson ordered federal agents into Harlem, largest Negro community in the United States, and declared that U.S. citizens "have a right to protection of life and limb" whether in the rural south "or a street in New York City."

WORST INCIDENT

The incident late Tuesday in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn was by far the worst of the day and brought at least 200 police to the scene. The situation in Harlem was calm by comparison.

At one point, a bottle sailed from a crowd of Negro teenagers, narrowly missing a policeman. Seven patrolmen plunged into the crowd, swinging night sticks.

Four Negroes were knocked to the sidewalks, all of them bleeding. Two of the injured youths were identified as Herron Ward, 17, and James Walker, 15.

PATROLMEN PUSHED

The police then fired a volley of shots over the heads of the crowd for at least three minutes. Gradually, the mob was dispersed.

At 8 p.m. PDT, police broke up a large crowd of Negroes in Harlem at 116th St. and Seventh Ave. Officers were dispatched to other sections of Harlem to assist patrolmen being pushed around in scattered incidents.

A UPI reporter at the scene of the Brooklyn fighting was approached by three young Negroes. "Don't worry, man,"

Boy Drowns At Island Campsite

NANAIMO (CP) — Barry Wait, 12, drowned Tuesday while swimming at a campsite near Yellow Point, 12 miles south of here.

Barry, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wait of Ladysmith, was said to have been a good swimmer. He disappeared while swimming in the sea and his body was recovered soon after.

'Wake Up OAS'

Cuban Exiles Protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cuban exiles clashed with police in a wild melee outside the 20-nation inter-American conference convened Tuesday amidst growing sentiment for total diplomatic and trade isolation of Fidel Castro's Cuba.

As the foreign ministers began their four-day meeting to consider sanctions against the Communist Caribbean nation, several hundred Cubans — among some 5,000 who set out to stage a peaceful demonstration — fought and struggled with scores of police.

(See picture, Page 3.) They threw stones, they jeered and cheered. They chanted "Cuba, Si, Russia No." They carried banners saying in both English and Spanish, "We Save Cuba or We Lose America."

"Wake Up OAS," said another banner, referring to the Organization of American States.

Only quick action by mounted patrolmen who rode into the crowd broke up the melee.

Key Senators Spark Revolt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater was faced with a budding revolt of party moderates Tuesday when both New York senators announced that they are withholding support for his national ticket.

There were indications that similar actions might be taken by some other GOP leaders. Senator Kenneth Keating, who made his statement here, said he had discussed his action with party leaders in other areas but "I would want them to speak for themselves."

STATE PLATFORM

Keating issued a statement and held a news conference here after his New York colleague, Senator Jacob Javits, announced that he was withholding support for the ticket of Goldwater and Rep. William Miller, who is also a New York Republican.

(See also Pages 2, 7.)

Both Javits and Keating called for the formulation of a state GOP platform. Both said they were not bolting the GOP and would continue as Republicans. Both held out hope—but apparently not much of it—that Goldwater might alter his position and policies so as to make it possible to support him.

NO COMMENT

Goldwater, working at home on the mail which has been piling up since his nomination in San Francisco last week, sent word, after the Javits announcement, that he would have no comment for the present.

In a separate news conference Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., told newsmen he thinks the withdrawal of Alabama Gov. Wallace from the presidential race may be of "material advantage" to the Goldwater campaign.

Even before the convention in San Francisco, Keating—who seeks re-election this fall—had indicated he would conduct his campaign independently if he decided to run for re-election.

Barry Wants 'Crash' Plans

Abandon Moon Race, Leave Space to Military

WASHINGTON — Senator Barry Goldwater has laid out a "realistic space program for America" in which "all manned space research should be directed by the military."

The Republican presidential candidate also said in a magazine article just came to light that the concept of a moon race "must be abandoned, regardless of Kremlin propaganda."

He urged a slow placed, less costly effort aimed at a manned lunar landing "much later" than the 1969 target date now scheduled. Total cost of the present program is estimated at $20,000,000,000.

The nation's manned space flight program is now almost exclusively in the hands of the civilian National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The agency was created in 1958 on the recommendation of then-president Dwight Eisenhower to keep peaceful uses of space separate from Pentagon programs.

The senator's views, the strongest and most detailed expressed by him on space, were contained in the June issue of Science and Mechanics, a popular science magazine.

In the piece, Goldwater also calls for two "crash" programs, one to develop the Nike-Zeus anti-missile missile and another to "develop the Laser as a weapon."

"Particular kinds of Lasers

could, with lethal certainty, vaporize enemy nuclear space weapons before they could harm our territory," he wrote. Lasers are intensely concentrated beams of light.

'Several Years,' Says Judy

Health Plan Far Off

OTTAWA (CP) — A comprehensive system of medical and health care on a national basis appears to be several years off.

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said at the end of a two-day federal-provincial health ministers conference Tuesday she hopes to have a draft program ready for preliminary talks with the provinces early next year.

At the request of the provinces, the draft would aim at stage-by-stage implementation of some of the recommendations of the Hall royal commission on health services.

POLICY BY 1965 "We hope to be able by early 1965 to develop a policy of how much of the plan we would be in a financial position to offer the provinces," Miss LaMarsh told a press conference.

She said the federal and provincial governments accept the "inevitability" of radical care insurance. But she made it plain that the governing factor will be the resources available to the governments involved.

The Hall commission suggestion of provincial sweepstakes to help finance a plan was mentioned. "There was a laugh and that was that," she said.

WILL MOVE SLOWLY The conference had shown "we will have to move rather more slowly than some would wish."

Meanwhile, she said, a technical committee will work on defining what kind of mental patient care should be covered in the current hospital insurance program.

The provinces had urged that mental and tubercular patient care be covered but "we gave them at this time no indication that now or in the immediate future we would be prepared to assume the cost."

The provinces also were to provide Ottawa with estimates of their spending on hospital construction between now and 1968, when current federal con-

Bailiff Awaits Hal Banks

MONTREAL (CP) — Bailiff Andre Landriau failed to apprehend Hal Banks Tuesday in two visits to the suburban Pointe Claire home of the deposed president of the Seafarers' International Union.

Mr. Landriau was trying to serve a writ of arrest on Banks for the former waterfront leader to be taken to north-end Boreaux Jail to begin serving a 30-day sentence for contempt of court.

Lumber Load Slips Three Women Die

PRINCETON (CP) — Three women were fatally injured but five other persons, including four children, escaped late Tuesday when a lumber load tumbled from a truck on a highway curve and struck two cars passing at the time.

RCMP identified one of the dead women as Agnes Lydia O'Neill, 41, of Squamish.

RCMP said a big diesel-tractor truck driven by Gerald Keegan of Richmond, loaded with lumber was rounding a curve going east 12 1/2 miles east of here when parts of its load gave away.

The load tumbled onto a car going in the opposite direction and containing two women. They were fatally injured.

A second car, following the first and containing Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill and their four children, also was struck by the tumbling lumber and plowed into the wreckage of the first.

Mrs. O'Neill was pronounced dead on arrival at Princeton Hospital. Her husband escaped with slight injuries and their four children were unhurt.

Truck driver Keegan stopped his truck after the accident and was not injured.

Communal Clashes Shake Singapore

SINGAPORE (Reuters) — Four persons were killed and 178 injured in six hours of communal clashes between Malays and Chinese here Tuesday.

Police reported the fighting had stopped after a curfew was imposed on the island.

POLICE CALLED

Hundreds of police were called out as the fighting spread. Stores and street stalls owned by Chinese were wrecked, cars overturned and motorcycles and trishaws — three-wheeled rickshaws — were thrown into storm drains.

Speaking in a television broadcast Tuesday night, Singapore's Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew said some persons "probably with Indonesian co-operation," had been exploiting the atmosphere "brought on by propaganda in the past few months."

Scores Moral Victory Over Smuggling

Kremlin Pulls Plug on Water Polo Team

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union's water polo team has been disbanded for smuggling foreign clothing into the country and will not go to the 1964 Olympic Games.

The team recently returned from a disastrous foreign tour that included losses to Romania and Yugoslavia, two ties, and only one victory.

tacked 10 of the 11 players as well as the coaches.

"They had no time to think of the outcome of the sports matches while goods for smuggling waited under their beds in the hotel," Komsomolskaya Pravda said.

The paper said the team was stopped at a Soviet customs checkpoint while returning from the trip.

"They turned white at the custom's house when asked to open their suitcases," the newspaper said. "Their suitcases were full of foreign goods... Who needs so many clothes?"

"The water polo players tried to explain they bought them for their poor relations. That's a lie!"

"They were bought not for presents but for speculation (a serious crime in the Soviet Union). There was only one sportsman who did not exchange his dignity for the foreign rags," Komsomolskaya Pravda said.

The team, according to the newspaper, has been "disbanded for... losing the honor of Soviet sportsmen."

Another team will be recruited for the "four-year road to the Olympics," the newspaper said, indicating no effort would be made to form another team in time for this year's Olympics.

Senate Passes Pay Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Senate approved Monday an across-the-board pay increase for more than 1.8 million officers and enlisted men in the American armed services. Approval was by voice vote.

The $207.5 million measure, the second military pay increase in a year, was sent to the House of Representatives. There backers were reported ready to clear it soon unchanged and rush it to the White House.

It authorizes a flat 2.5 per cent boost in basic pay for 1,788,281 officers and enlisted personnel in all services with two years active service or more.

Carloadings Up from 1963

OTTAWA (CP) — Railway carloadings in Canada in the seven days ended July 7 rose 12.8 per cent to 72,136 compared with the same period last year, the bureau of statistics has reported. This brought the number loaded in the Jan. 1 to July 7 period to 1,959,448 cars, an increase of 11.7 per cent from a year earlier.

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Integration leader Martin Luther King flew here to boost the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party, which hopes to seat its delegation at the Democratic national convention in the place of an all-white delegation. The new party is composed mainly of Negroes and is firmly committed to support the re-election of President Johnson.

concentrated light beams produced by devices which so far are largely laboratory novelties. The defense department is studying the devices but its scientists consider a laser weapon a very remote possibility at present.

Goldwater also reiterated his opposition to the limited nuclear test ban treaty. "The treaty is a concession to the Kremlin and thereby gives both political and psychological strength to Khrushchev," he said, and should be "reconsidered."

He defined a realistic space program as "one that will strengthen free world security without diminishing the amount of new scientific information to be gathered for man's advancement."

"It should include the following consideration," he said. "The moon race: The concept that speeding man to the moon is the same as jockeying trotters over a muddy track must be abandoned, regardless of Kremlin propaganda."

"The idea that we can cooperate with the Russians to do the job quicker and cheaper, and at the same time gain their good will, is too ludicrous for comment."

"The military role in space: All manned space research should be directed by the military, with national security and control of the access to space as primary goals."

"The threat from space now and in the foreseeable future comes from regions near earth, not from lunar distances, Goldwater said."

"Routine daily surveillance of these regions must be established and the additional capabilities of positive identification, interception, and destruction of hostile enemy vehicles will be necessary," he said.

"This would be the greatest deterrent to an enemy's military space aspirations," the senator declared.

He said a test-ban treaty provides the Soviet Union with an opportunity to "fill a gap in its own nuclear capabilities," stylizes the development of counter-measures against Soviet nuclear attacks; prevents the development of nuclear weapon systems to control enemy access to space; and permits clandestine Soviet tests "by way of Red China."

struction grants expire, and for the five years thereafter.

The federal government was to study ways that the current health grants program could be widened to give support to provincial programs against alcoholism. This was suggested by Quebec and Manitoba.

But on comprehensive medical care, all levels of government were taking a cautious approach while accepting it as inevitable.

The general feeling, with one exception, was that the Hall commission estimates of costs were too low. The commission estimated that by 1971 the present system of health services will cost $4,015,000,000 and said that for another $466,000,000 Canada could expand the system and provide medical care for all.

SASKATCHEWAN DISAGREES She said Saskatchewan, the only province with experience of a medicare program, disagreed on this point.

The commission was "overconfident of governments' ability to digest such a report and regurgitate a policy," she said in connection with the commission proposal for a conference of medical care within six months.

"I haven't seen the kitchen sink in there but I've seen everything else."

The commission had done what every royal commission does, "without regard to the practicalities, recommend the optimum." The government then had to select what to implement.

"I don't think any commission report in the last 10 years has been adopted holus - bolus. I don't think this one will be either."

The conference, which opened Monday, held no discussion of priorities in connection with medical care but the provinces did urge that mental and T.B. care be brought under hospital insurance.

The provinces also felt that both the extension of hospital insurance and a medical care program would require substantial federal grants for training personnel and construction of facilities.

Mrs. LaMarsh had said earlier that extension of hospital insurance and a national medical and health care program would have to wait study of the country's tax structure by a federal-provincial committee.

CHATHAM, Ont. (UPI) — Eight charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency against a 45-year-old United Church minister were quashed Tuesday.

Judge W. H. Fox ruled today that the wording of the charges against Rev. Russell Horsburgh was not specific and that the minister would have little chance of preparing a defence against them.

one of them told him. "We're not after you, let those cops know that we've just started." It was charges of "police brutality" from Negro groups which touched off the bloody rioting in Harlem during the weekend and again last night.

YOUNG PEOPLE BLAMED Adult Negroes on the outskirts of the crowd in Brooklyn told reporters that "young people" were the cause of the trouble and that it was touched off by the Harlem rioting.

Shortly after midnight, the mob assembled in clusters of 10 and 20. Police broke them up as soon as they began to act as a group.

Johnson telephoned acting mayor Paul Screvane offering full federal co-operation and help "in this time of agony."

Through the White House press office, Johnson issued a statement saying he had directed J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, to inform New York officials that "we're conducting a complete investigation of the possibility of violation of federal laws."

NO FEDERAL TROOPS

Johnson's press secretary, George Reedy, said as far as he knew there had been no mention or consideration in official circles of the possible use of federal marshals or troops to prevent further violence in Harlem.

No Fireproofing

Pioneer Head Quits in Protest

The Saanich Pioneer Society was jolted Monday as president Willard Michell resigned when he felt the members were not behind him in the desire to provide fireproof facilities for farm implements in the Pioneer Museum at the Saanich Agricultural grounds.

"I don't want to be responsible for these items if the society isn't going to provide for them properly," said Mr. Michell.

"These implements are valuable, irreplaceable, and right now they are housed in a log cabin. If a fire started, it couldn't be stopped, and then these articles would be gone forever."

"These things are educationally valuable, even though it is impossible to put a dollar and cents value on them. They show the present generation just what the pioneers had to put up with."

Mr. Michell was replaced in the chair at the meeting by vice-president Harold Young.

NOTHING DONE "They've passed resolutions calling for construction of a new fireproof building," said Mr. Michell, "but it's obvious that nothing is getting done."

He said the society had originally planned to canvass for funds to start a new museum, but that many members had felt that they could not join in the fund-raising campaign.

"I'm sure we could get a grant," he stated, "but first we have to show the interest ourselves."

VERY OLD He also wondered what would happen to various implements of historical value that he has stored on his farm on East Saanich Road.

"They're very old, and they're not under the proper cover," he said. "Something should be done with them to put them in shape."

"But now it's up to the rest of them. If they want to do something, they can."

Your Good Health

Some Allergies Hard to Spot Sometimes It Takes Weeks

By JOSEPH MOLNER MD

Dear Dr. Molner: What is contact dermatitis? Does it mean that you are allergic to something you touch?—M.K.S.

The "derma" part of the word means skin; the "itis" means inflammation. So dermatitis means some sort of skin disease.

It may be a rash, an itch, a swelling. Poison ivy is a case of dermatitis. Some sort of germ, fungus or whatnot, can also cause skin trouble. Dandruff is dermatitis of the scalp.

There are many things that can bother the skin. Some people are allergic to pollen in the air. Their noses run, their eyes water, they sneeze, because they breathe particles of pollen from plants.

FOOD ALLERGY Others eat a certain food to which they happen to be sensitive, and their stomachs rebel, or they break out with hives, or a rash, and that's a "food allergy."

But it is also possible for people to be allergic (or overly sensitive) to things they touch. This is contact dermatitis. The skin becomes irritated where these substances touches the skin.

Some allergies are very hard to recognize. This includes—in spades—the contact allergies. Because, you see, the skin does not necessarily break out at the first touch. It can take perhaps weeks or more before there has been enough contact so that the trouble becomes noticeable.

SOME EXAMPLES

I'll give you a few classic examples: A man whose fingertips became red and sore. It was traced, finally, to sensitivity to nickels.

Soap or detergents, usually safe enough, bother some people after continued use. There was a stenographer who was allergic to carbon paper, and another who was allergic to lipstick.

A woman was allergic to some chemicals used in manufacturing her girdle. Another got sore spots on her hands because of the paint on her broom handle.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son, who is 23, has had diabetes for 15 years. After reading a health article, he has been taking hundreds of milligrams of Vitamin C when he feels "a cold coming on." I fear the excessive quantities will be hard on his kidneys. What amount would be right?

The recommended amount for an adult is 75 milligrams a day. Vitamin C has several known functions: preventing scurvy, aiding the healing of wounds, making strong bone and tooth structures, preventing the capillaries (tiny blood vessels) from becoming fragile.

However, no harm results from excessive amounts since the kidneys readily eliminate Vitamin C. It's a waste of money, though, to take more than you need or can use.

NOTE TO MRS. B.N.—No, you don't need a doctor's prescription to purchase a 10 to 25-per-cent solution of aluminum chloride to control perspiration. Just get it at your drugstore. (You can buy the aluminum chloride and make your own solution.)

We know Ale is different from beer, because we brew both. Beer yeast works willingly at the bottom of the vat. But our stubborn Ale strain starts its career at the top. Superior Judge Donald Odell also granted permission for Miss Allyson to withdraw another $3,000 to buy a car for daughter, Pamela, 16, as a reward for top school work.

Miss Allyson is now wed to barber Glenn Maxwell, of Newport Beach, Calif.

Powell's estate was estimated at $1,000,000. His widow received $5,000 monthly, but the figure was cut in half when she remarried.

Language Barrier Blamed in Tieup

MONTREAL (CP) — The loading of the Canuck Trader came to a halt Tuesday when members of the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) refused to cross picket lines set up by the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind).

The ILA charged the Canadian owners of the Bahamas-registered freighter with violating the federal vessel discipline act by not reading certain rules to the Hong Kong crew as prescribed by law.

"The crew must then sign the necessary forms," an ILA spokesman said. "This is impossible since the crew does not speak either English or French and the captain and his mate, who are British, don't speak Chinese."

The picketing began Monday when the freighter arrived in Montreal.

Loan for Bribery Denied by Banker

QUEBEC (CP) — A bank manager denied late Tuesday testimony given earlier in the day that he had loaned former contractor Amedee Bellemare $1,500 to bribe Attorney-General Rene Hamel in order to obtain a sub-contract two months after the Quebec Liberal government took office in 1960.

Emile Morin, manager of a branch of the Banque Canadienne Nationale in Shawinigan, Que., denied giving such a loan in the summer of 1960 and also denied testimony by Mr. Bellemare that he had been aware of such bribes.

His testimony came as a surprise at the Legislative Assembly's committee on privileges and elections hearing a charge of influence - peddling against Mr. Hamel, believed to be the first time the committee has sat since 1893.

Mr. Morin was a witness called by Yves Gabrias (UN-Trois-Rivieres) who brought up the charge against Mr. Hamel by tabling sworn statements from Mr. Bellemare in the house June 30.

In earlier testimony, Mr. Bellemare, who said he had been a longtime political supporter of Mr. Hamel's repeated testimony he gave at a 1962 bankruptcy court hearing in Trois-Rivieres in which he blamed his business failure on bribes he said he paid to provincial government officials to obtain contracts.

Under cross-examination by Premier Lesage, Mr. Bellemare could not recall the precise dates he obtained the bank loan or saw Mr. Hamel to pay the bribe.

Moscow Denies Firing on Ship

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union denied Tuesday that Soviet coast guard cutters fired shells across the bow of an American grain ship in the Black Sea.

The denial in the government newspaper Izvestia said only warning rockets were fired at the ship, the Sister Katingo, in order to stop her last week. The paper said the Soviet Union rejected a protest of the United States to the Soviet embassy in Washington.

The cutters chased the ship after it left the port of Novorossiysk — where it had been unloading a cargo of U.S. grain — without getting harbor clearance.

The skipper of the ship, Capt. Arthur H. Fertig, claimed the Russians fired across his bow. The Soviet foreign ministry called in the No. 2 man of the U.S. embassy, Walter Stoessel Jr., Monday and said Fertig is forbidden to re-enter a Soviet port.

"The malicious shots in Harlem were only a spark that set off the social dynamite which has accumulated aplenty in the Negro ghetto," a dispatch from Tass said earlier.

Izvestia's New York correspondent said, "The truncheons of the swaggering New York policemen failed to keep the Negroes off the streets."

"The streets of Harlem were full of people and I saw that every one of those faces was a mask of hatred of the police," he said.

Militia Cuts Not So Severe

OTTAWA (CP) — Associate Defence Minister Cardin said Tuesday the 43,600-member militia won't be cut to 30,000 as previously announced.

He explained before the Commons defence committee that more than 30,000 militiamen will be needed to make sure that there are always 30,000 effective members.

He said he couldn't say what the actual figure will be. It might be 36,000 or 37,500.

A Final Appeal

IT WAS BEFORE the national convention in May of the Royal Canadian Legion that Prime Minister Pearson launched his bid for a new national flag of maple leaf design. The Legion is staunchly in favor of the Red Ensign but it pledged itself loyally to abide by the decision of the nation at large if the people were allowed to make the choice.

Because it seems likely that a parliamentary vote will be taken on the subject before the next edition of its monthly journal, The Legionary, the Legion in the current July number bespeaks further consideration of the subject on the part of the prime minister.

It says, and in terms that express a wide body of opinion without as well as within the ranks of the Legion itself, as follows:

"The Legionary takes what is probably the last opportunity available to make one more appeal to the Prime Minister to let the people of Canada decide this crucial question. We do so because we earnestly believe a national plebiscite is by far the most clear-cut way of settling the problem once and for all, and because we sincerely believe it is the only means of avoiding, so far as it is possible to do so, making it a partisan issue.

"Even if a 'free' vote of MPs and Senators were allowed, there would be a natural tendency—human nature being what it is—for Government supporters to vote for the Government's own design, and it is far from certain that a parliamentary vote on an issue of this nature would accurately reflect the feelings of the whole people of Canada.

"In a free, democratic country, where public opinion is neither repressed nor suppressed, instances occur when the people are stirred to the innermost depths of heart and soul. Then it is that government by the people, for the people, is given true effect by a national vote on the issue at stake, and on that only.

"The Legionary believes that the flag question is such an issue and again strongly urges the Prime Minister to let the Canadian people decide it, one way or another, through a national plebiscite. It is the most democratic way of solving this problem. It is the only way to ascertain what the people really want. And the request for a plebiscite is sure to be warmly supported by all Canadians of goodwill and moderation because, no matter what the result, if the issue were settled by a parliamentary vote only, grave doubts would arise in the minds of a great many citizens that it represented the will of the people.

"These doubts would linger on for many years and would remain a serious obstacle to the attainment of national unity."

And in its closing paragraph the Legionary, the organ of a proud and patriotic assemblage of war veterans, pleads in these words: "So please, Mr. Prime Minister, let the people decide. It would be a statesman-like solution and might well be a nation-saving move."

Will Mr. Pearson heed this final appeal, couched in sincere and logical language and undoubtedly bespeaking the sentiments of large numbers of Canadians from coast to coast?

It is not yet too late for the prime minister to change his course, without the slightest loss of government face but instead in a gesture of statesmanship which would be widely applauded as a method by which the flag issue could be solved to ensure the greatest degree of national unity.

Not So Simple

SPEAKING BEFORE a meeting of her provincial colleagues in Ottawa Monday, Federal Health Minister Judy LaMarsh not only informed them that the Dominion government was determined to establish a national medicare scheme but also warned them that the plan would involve great expenditures from provincial and federal treasuries.

In expressing her concern over costs of carrying out one of the Liberal election promises, Miss LaMarsh departs from character as a member of the present federal cabinet. For almost the first time on record a member of the present government has publicly admitted that any extension of present public welfare services will actually cost money.

Even the Liberal Party's election platform in which the promise of a national medicare scheme was first made failed to mention this point. In fact the whole matter was conveniently, if vaguely, covered by the Liberal Party's policy committee's statement that "... the greater part of the cost of the health plan will not be a new burden on the economy, for it will simply replace doctors' bills and medicine costs which are already being paid by individuals, either directly or through pre-payment schemes."

It now appears that Miss LaMarsh has suddenly realized that the glib solution put forward by the Liberal brain-trusters to bring the ambitious program to fruition is little more than sheer nonsense.

Agreeable Colors

ONE CANNOT imagine that there will be much objection to the government's decision to adopt permanent colors for British Columbia's licence plates, especially since the hues chosen are this year's inoffensive white and blue. Indeed in Victoria the plates will fit in nicely with the civic "street furniture"—the cluster lamps and the like—which may possibly have had something to do with the choice.

Even though the color of the figures and the background will be reversed annually the licences will be more readily recognized abroad than if completely changed every two years, which is of some ambassadorial consequence. This does invite the renewed suggestion that the province could very well settle on a so-called permanent plate, one that would be issued for a term of five years at least, with a date tab or tag that could be changed but obviating the yearly battle of complete replacement; presumably at a saving to the provincial treasury too, and permitting drivers maybe to learn their own numbers before discarding the plates.

But at least it will be satisfying to many owners, and particularly perhaps the womenfolk, to know that they can avoid a shrieking clash of car and licence colors at what previously had been the whim of a mysterious Somebody at James Bay.

By TOM TAYLOR

NOT knowing anything about whales, which enables me to discuss them, I have been intrigued as possibly you have by the specimen now sulking and refusing to eat in a Vancouver drydock. The lack of appetite can be excused. So would yours fall off if you were harpooned and penned in a confined pool from which the chances of escape were nil.

Nor would it be much comfort to know, as possibly even a whale knows, that you're lucky to be alive. They didn't intend to be so merciful. Those captors of the now famous B.C. mammal.

It is interesting to read also that she is being fed vitamins, which incongruously rings a TV bell in my mind about the vitamins that won't cure tired blood. Maybe they should give her some of the stuff that allegedly will. One might justifiably presume I suppose that the shock of imprisonment can affect a whale's blood-stream.

"This little mammal is a killer," they say, and so perhaps one needn't be lachrymose about the situation, but were I to gaze on her as she languished in captivity I might feel some of the pity that noble animals in cages sometimes evoke in me. I think in particular of a splendid Bengal tiger in the Seattle zoo, a magnificent creature made a plaything of man's insatiable curiosity.

However, as I write this her captors are hoping to inveigle a male whale to join her, so love's labor is not yet lost and there are kind hearts among her keepers.

I say little mammal because she is really a porpoise and a mere 17 feet long. Nothing like the fish that gave Jonah house room for three days and nights, or akin to Moby Dick, which could have swallowed the Vancouver mite and gone looking for more. Real whales are the biggest animals known to man, and I believe might be 100 feet in length and weigh 147 tons. B.C.'s current prize is really a little girl, which increases my sympathy for such a small maid.

It is said that the experts on whaleology are quite excited by the belief that Little Liz can talk, which is surely nothing to get excited about. Man's conceit is boundless but should this be a surprise?

Did not two of her chums look her up when she began to sink after being harpooned, proof enough that whales can see, hear and tell what's going on, especially when whale-hunters are around. And do not all living creatures have their own means of communication?

The surprise would come if the marine experts could translate her language; although maybe it's just as well they can't. She could scarcely be expected to be complimentary about people who think nothing of sticking large hooks into a soft feminine form.

And we don't know the pungency of whale talk; it might exceed even that of the House of Commons in debate. Indeed if one notes the daily newscast about Little Liz's extra-sensory perceptions she is far ahead of us in communicative aptitudes, apparently able to transmit her calls for help through a retaining wall. One thing perhaps is a relief. She won't be sold like a slave for ignorant adults like yours truly to gawk at. She is too valuable as a scientific treasure and will have her heart and brain read, presumably to see what makes her tick.

But after that, after she has satisfied marine curiosity and untitled the Vancouver scene, Little Liz deserves to be set free. No young maiden should be denied her true destiny, and does not a boy friend await her in the wide blue deep?

For all we are aware he may be singing "I hear you calling me."

Aid for Industry

Time for the Details

By DAVID GRENIER

NEGATIVE expansionism is the description a leading economist has bestowed on Canadian policy. It sounds inconsistent and illogical—and it is. But unfortunately it's accurate.

The inconsistency hinges largely on the use of tariff policy. Canada has maintained high tariffs as a wall firstly to encourage the establishment of new industries and then to provide them with shelter from foreign competition.

In practice, many of the industries that have been established in Canada behind the tariff all have yet to cross the threshold into maturity. And the tariff today is stunting their growth in a way that makes them almost as helplessly dependent on protection as the day they came into existence.

Hence the negative expansionism in many industries. As a result, it's argued that Canada can't compete without the help of tariffs, that lowering or removal of tariffs would only lead to extinction.

What are the assumptions behind this attitude?

While admitting that the solutions won't be easy, the tone of Mr. English's report is positive. If problems of structure can be overcome, he argues, Canada appears to have a good base on which to build an internationally competitive manufacturing industry. And he suggests that the opportunity for a basic change in commercial policy is at hand in the Kennedy Round at GATT.

But the report also urges greater government leadership in framing policies that will make it possible for industries to adjust to lower tariffs. The U.S. Trade Expansion Act for instance, allows government help for industries and workers that may be hit by imports. In Canada, the government probably has equally wide powers to help industries to adjust.

So far, though, Ottawa's policy on this score has been implicit rather than explicit. With less than six months to go before the Kennedy Round talks start up again in Geneva, it's time the government started spelling things out in more detail instead of leaving industry to keep its fingers crossed about the future.

Election Chances Affected

Strike Perils for Labor Party

By NORA BELOFF from London

THE spread of labor unrest between now and the British general election in October could seriously imperil Harold Wilson's chances of becoming Britain's next prime minister. It is not surprising, therefore, that it took many days of anxious and secret deliberations between the Labor Party leaders to bring the party out flatly on the side of Post Office workers, whose nationwide strike for more pay has been paralysing the British postal services.

Most political pundits would agree that, given the sustained Labor majority in all the public opinion polls, confirmed by repeated by-elections and local elections over the past two years, Labor trouble is probably the only factor which could bring the Conservatives to power for the fourth time in a row. Many people also believe that a fourth consecutive defeat would be the end of the Labor Party—at least in its present form.

The only other factor which might decisively swing public opinion in favor of the existing government and against a change would be some international crisis. But with Khrushchev in his present mood and the Chinese not yet nuclear, this seems improbable.

In fact there is a good deal of evidence to suggest that some of the unpopular strikes which broke out in Britain before the last election, and which included a highly-uncomfortable bus strike, were a major factor in the last Conservative victory.

The view that strikes are bad for the Labor Party is acknowledged far outside British frontiers. One Belgian official teasingly asked Mr. Reginald Maudling, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, not when the British elections would be, but when he could expect the big strike which, in his view, was the essential preliminary to the next British election.

The trades union leaders who have invested a lot of money and a lot of work in Labor Party politics, have been acutely consious of their own self-interest in preventing a pre-election showdown between management and labor. Their restraining influence curtailed or averted major strikes which had been threatening earlier in the year in the steel mills, docks and mines. The most recent rash of strikes, however, has been outside the "normal" proletarian working class sectors.

First there was the sudden disappearance of the Independent Television program, watched by a huge majority of Labor and working-class supporters, when the technicians and cameramen demanded a 25 per cent rise. This time Labor kept quiet, but Party Leader Harold Wilson privately intervened to get the men back to work as quickly as possible, and they agreed to go, even before they had negotiated a settlement.

Secondly, there were the staff troubles which had brought British airlines to a halt, revolving around a withdrawal of parking facilities and the unpleasant news to the men that they would not only have to leave their cars a mile away but also pay for the special buses to take them to work. The disruption here caused maximum embarrassment, but only to a minimum number of mainly middle-class travellers, and has had no serious repercussions.

The postmen, on the contrary, have been involved in a struggle which concerns almost every adult member of the population, and the electoral effects could be dynamite. Millions of accumulated letters and parcels will take months to sort out.

Leader of the postal union, Ron Smith, can claim loyal membership of the Labor Party since the age of 13. He personally disclaims any political ambitions, although there is no doubt that he is as keen as any man to help Labor win the general election in October. But his authority was insufficient to hold back his members, and he found himself leading them from the rear into their battle with the government.

Labor losses are Conservative gains, and there is no doubt that many people would be only too pleased to have a showdown with troublesome unions between now and polling day. Hence the very serious charge raised by the Labor member of Parliament for Gateshead West, Mr. H. E. Randall, who has accused the government of deliberate provocation.

The postmaster-general, Mr. Reginald Bevins, in fact, repeated the offer he made earlier this year for a four per cent rise against the 12 per cent the postmen demanded. And offered to set up a new committee to compare postmen's earnings with those in other industries, agreeing in advance to make further adjustments in the light of their findings. Labor Party spokesmen, however, backed the postmen's right to hold out for more.

The government evidently felt that the country would respect a firm stand, and although Labor has so far produced no evidence that the government wanted to provoke a showdown, it is fairly easy to see how a collision could have been averted, had the government wanted it, without any tremendous strain on the national budget.

Labor hopes that, although in general the public is anti-strike, it will be sympathetic to the grievances of the postman, who is a popular figure. Both parties are gambling on unknown and unmeasurable links of sympathy or exasperation between the public and the postmen.

Despite Boom

Hong Kong Worries

By G. R. WARRREN
from Hong Kong

AT 8.30 EACH morning Radio Hong Kong begins a program which is probably the only one of its kind in the world. The 15-minute radio show called "Pearl in Your Hand" caters for the thousands of tourists who crowd into the British colony each day. The daily fare ranges from shopping tips, Cantonese lessons, anecdotes from Hong Kong history, sightseeing suggestions, and reports on local events.

Hotels cooperate in telling guests about the program and the "Pearl Show" is repeated in the evenings for those who miss the morning sessions. This unusual radio presentation perhaps illustrates more than anything else tourism's growing role in the Far East and, in particular, Hong Kong.

Once the undisputed shopping centre of the Far East, Hong Kong is now facing problems. The economy is booming as never before but costs are going up. Scarcity of land and demands for shop space have forced rentals in the main tourist areas to fantastic heights with retail prices rising proportionally. The overall cost of living has gone up 25 per cent since 1958.

Major bargains can still be had, however. Oriental handicrafts, silk brocades, watches, electronic products and other goods are priced well below other retail markets. But many other commodities are creeping up in costs to a point where they are no longer so attractive to the traveller.

With its tradition of laissez faire economy there is little the Hong Kong government can do to control prices, though tourist officials keep warning merchants they are headed for danger.

With the past accent on shopping benefits, other facilities in the colony have been ignored. Now attention is being swung to the sightseeing and recreation attractions that tourists generally do not associate with Hong Kong. For instance, only a few minutes' drive from the built-up areas, travellers can visit centuries old Chinese villages. They can enter ancient temples and witness Oriental religious observances, or they can enjoy beautiful beaches and explore by boat dozens of outlying islands.

But even if the accent on tourism can be varied, there is another worry in the minds of the tourist promoters. That is the fear that Hong Kong might innocently be caught up in the backlash of the Sino-Soviet dispute with the resulting publicity frightening away the politically timid.

Hong Kong plays the game of strict neutrality, being cautious not to offend its gigantic neighbor to the north. But the Soviet Union, through official statements and newspaper articles, is periodically needing the Peking government for allowing the Hong Kong bastion of capitalism and colonialism to exist on its doorstep.

So far China has reacted defensively to the Soviet barbs, declaring that its relations with Hong Kong are its own business and no one else's. Hong Kong hopes the problem will go no further.

Campsite Rowdiness

REGARDING the recent letter on provincial campsites, I regret to say that all is not as it should be. My family has almost lost the desire to use public campsites since we recently camped at Ivy Green Park near Ladysmith.

First all was well. At 8 p.m. the park attendant departed. At 8.30 a police car cruised through. At 10 p.m. several teenage rowdies who had apparently been drinking turned up with their cars. From then until 4 a.m. the racket never stopped. The roads of the park were turned into dragstrips, tires squealed, doors slammed, engines were revved and hoarse shouts filled the air. For six hours we were unable to sleep.

The following morning the attendant assured me that this happened quite frequently but nothing could be done about it! Until two years ago the park was supervised and no problems developed.

It seems to me that parks and campsites created at considerable cost are there for the recreation of city-weary people and every effort should be made to keep them that way. It would be sad if they were turned into playgrounds for teenage rowdies who will get bolder if there is no opposition.

Pleased

I would like to object to you speaking on my behalf in your editorial of July 17. You say ALL non-Americans are surprised and shocked at Senator Goldwater's capture of the Republican nomination for president.

I, sir, am pleased to see that such a large majority of the people are rejecting the Leftist trend of the last number of years and supporting a man dedicated to the conservative cause.

The politicians in Canada would be surprised and shocked I know at the support that would be given to any one of them with the fortitude to offer us a vote for democracy.

Having lost the cold war through appeasement for the last 20 years, surely a change of policy is indicated.

OTTAWA (CP) — H. W. Herdridge (NDP — Kootenay West) said Tuesday in the Commons there are suspicions in some quarters that the board of maritime trustees has made a deal with Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers' International Union of North America.

OAS Stand Unaffected By Demands

OTTAWA (UPI) — External Affairs Minister Martin said Tuesday Canada's re-evaluation of its position towards the Organization of American States has no relation to current demands for sanctions against Cuba.

Martin was asked in the Commons by Social Credit Leader Thompson whether Canada planned any action on its position because of the "widespread support" the Venezuelan suggestion of Cuban sanctions likely would receive at the OAS meeting.

Martin said the government had a "very deep concern" about the issue, but added that the OAS meeting itself would have no bearing on continuing consideration of Canadian membership in the organization.

Canada adheres to a policy of trade in non-strategic goods with Cuba.

Martin also said there had been no change of thinking on the part of the government which differed in any way from election campaign promises a year ago of immediate attention to OAS membership.

QUESNEL — Mayor Alex Fraser of Quesnel, president of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, said Tuesday he will contact the provincial government for clarification of its new winter works policy. Old Theory Exploded By Bear

COQUITLAM (CP) — Mrs. Frank Links, 31, found out the theory of remaining motionless so a bear will pass you by, doesn't work.

The Coquitlam housewife was trying to take a picture of a bear in Manning Park near Hope.

"I didn't think it would harm me even when it started towards me, so I stayed where I was."

"I got an awful shock when the bear came right up to me and hit me on the leg."

Mrs. Links was released from hospital after treatment.

Quebec MPs Rap NDP Charges

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Quebec MPs struck back in the Commons Tuesday at their outspoken socialist colleague, Douglas Fisher, accusing him of stirring up anti-Quebec sentiment.

Paul Martineau, former Conservative mines minister, and Creditiste Leader Real Caouette denied Mr. Fisher's charges that certain Quebec MPs are playing "petty, dirty Quebec politics" in opposing the government's student loan bill.

Mr. Martineau said Mr. Fisher (NDP — Port Arthur) tried to gag Parliament Monday with an "unfounded and disgraceful attack" on the Creditistes and Quebec Conservatives who oppose the students' legislation.

Addis Ababa African HQ

CAIRO (Reuters) — The African summit conference has agreed that the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa should be the headquarters of the Organization of African Unity, a conference spokesman said.

He repeated his contention that the bill is unconstitutional because it infringes provincial jurisdiction over civil rights.

The strains on confederation would be aggravated if French Canadians were treated as inferior partners or as pariahs.

Mr. Caouette said Mr. Fisher once again had demonstrated his prejudice against Quebec and his inability to understand the forces at work in that province.

He said the New Democratic house leader whips up ethnic animosity with his "hothead statements."

The Creditiste leader also took a swipe at Quebec Premier Jean Lesage, who he accused of being a hypocrite in forgetting his election promises and a lamb in his dealings with the federal government.

FREE TUITION

Mr. Lesage had promised free tuition at all levels of education in Quebec, but instead he was introducing student loans with interest charges.

Mr. Caouette said the federal and Quebec loan plans inevitably will lead to higher taxation. He favored printing more money through the Bank of Canada and handing it out as scholarships.

Reds Don't Fear 'Semi-Wild Men'

WARSAW (UPI)—Premier Khrushchev accused Senator Barry Goldwater today of campaigning "under the slogans of frantic anti-Communism and military threats." He said such a course would be "dangerous to the whole world."

Khrushchev, the first Soviet official to comment on Goldwater's success in winning the Republican presidential nomination, spoke at a rally marking the 20th anniversary of the creation of Poland's Communist government.

Khrushchev's remarks came shortly after Polish Communist party leader Wladyslaw Gomulka charged that Goldwater's candidacy illustrated the danger of "aggressive imperialism" and that his policies could lead to a nuclear disaster.

Gomulka coupled his remarks on Goldwater with a biting denunciation of West German "militarism" which he said illustrated the danger to peace from certain circles in the United States and West Germany.

U.S. Ambassador John Moore Cabot stalked out of the crowded hall in apparent protest to Gomulka's remarks. This was before Khrushchev spoke.

Khrushchev did not mention Goldwater by name but in a speech televised to the Soviet people said:

"The convention of the Republican party in the United States recently adopted an electoral platform reflecting the policies precisely of these most aggressive U.S. circles, and the presidential candidate nominated by the convention clearly showed that he wanted to enter the White House under the slogans of frantic anti-Communism and military threats."

Khrushchev said the Soviet Union has been in existence for 47 years. "During this period, we have seen all kinds of wild men, and semi-wild men," he said. "The development of our socialist state, its existence and continued development, depends neither on wild men nor semi-wild men."

"The American electorate must reply to the question, whether the American people are willing to support the platform adopted by the Republican party at the San Francisco convention and thus to approve the course dangerous to the world, including the people of the United States," Khrushchev said. Khrushchev said the communist world must be "prepared for all kind of intrigues by the imperialists."

A $2,300 research grant for studies leading to a master's degree in physiology has been made to former Victorian Brian H. Sabiston.

Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, president of the Victoria Bar Association, agrees with the granting of amnesty to inmates of prisons, although the exercise of this practice during official visits by the Queen has been criticized by the Canadian Corrections Association.

Plumbing Firm Charges Unknown to Official Here

A Victoria official of a wholesale plumbing supply firm with a branch in Edmonton said he knew nothing of any price arrangements said to be made by his company in the Alberta city.

C. T. Bartle, secretary-treasurer of Bartle & Gibson Co. Ltd., 960 Yates, was commenting on a report of the restrictive trade practices commission which Tuesday named his company as one of 10 plumbing supply wholesalers who worked together to set a standardized pricing system in Alberta.

The commission reported that the system was set between 1956 and the launching of a federal inquiry in 1959. Mr. Bartle said the Edmonton branch was affiliated with the company but was "a local concern."

"I imagine we will have to abide by the commission's ruling," he said.

Pollution War

Oyster Men Seek

'Purifier'

Vancouver Island growers are actively considering adoption of treatment methods used in the U.S. and Europe to purify oysters grown in polluted waters.

The provincial health department recently clamped restrictions on growers in the Sooke and Ladysmith areas after it discovered high bacteria counts in several oyster beds.

CO-OPERATING

One official said this action has been accepted in a "very philosophical" fashion by the industry which has shown itself ready to co-operate fully.

Oysters taken from restricted leases are being "purified" by relaying in clean water for a quarantine period of two weeks during which the oyster pumps itself free of excess bacteria.

At least one leaseholder in the Ladysmith area is experimenting with a salt-water well to supply his oyster shucking plant.

ACTS AS FILTER

It has been proven to the satisfaction of health officials that the sand acts as a filter to remove bacteria from water and so render the well water acceptable, while the sea from which it is drawn remains polluted.

Consideration now is being given to establishment of large oyster tanks on the same principle as the salt-water well for the treatment of oysters.

Overseas oysters are treated by chlorination and exposure to ultra-violet light.

HIGH RATES

It has been shown, however, that high rates of pollution such as those which exist in Esquimalt Harbor and Deep Bay, near Fanny Bay, cannot be eliminated by these forms of treatment.

The total ban will become effective today in Esquimalt Harbor where David McMillan has had an oyster lease for 37 years.

STATUS UNCHANGED

Officials said there will be no change in status of either restricted or closed oyster leases until results from new bacteria counts to be taken in October are known.

At present 78 leaseholders work 2,527 acres of foreshore. In 1963 the marketed value of B.C. oysters was $781,000.

Two Charges Cost $175

Reginald Antrobus, 3580 Sooke Road, was fined $175 in Colwood magistrate's court Tuesday on charges of failing to remain at the scene of an accident and careless driving.

Antrobus was fined after he pleaded guilty to charges arising from an accident near Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club on Goldstream Road Thursday.

William Razzo, 18, of 626 Mt. View was injured in the accident.

Sea Races Begin Sunday

A week-long series of races will be held on the west coast of Vancouver Island July 26 to 31 by the Norpac Ocean Racing Association.

The races will be held in the daytime and mariners are asked to navigate with caution in the following areas:

July 26—Neah Bay to Bamfield, July 27—Bamfield to Ucluelet, July 28—Ucluelet to Tofino, July 29—Clayoquot Sound, July 30—Tofino to Turtle Island in Barkley Sound, July 31—Turtle Island to Effingham Island in Barkley Sound.

Freighter Ablaze Crew All Saved

ARGENTIA, Nfld. (CP)—The crew of a burning French freighter was taken aboard a second French ship in the North Atlantic Tuesday several hours after the men took to lifeboats.

An aircraft pilot reported that all members of the Marquette's crew were believed to have escaped in the lifeboats.

The fire was so intense that no one could still be alive aboard the ship, the plane's pilot messaged.

The U.S. Navy here announced that the Pentellina was alongside the lifeboats and shortly later the Pentellina radioed she had taken the men aboard.

The coast guard plane went to the area after the Marquette radioed that she was afire and the crew was abandoning ship. The plane dropped two lifeboats and a distress frequency radio to guide ships to the lifeboats. This type of radio does not permit conversation.

The Pentellina is a 12,839-ton ore carrier of French registry.

The Marquette had been en route to Lisbon from Montreal with a cargo of calcium phosphate and wood pulp. Her home port was Marseilles and the owner is Fabre Lines.

Oak Bay Not So Bad

Illegitimacy Figures Can Lie

By IAN SMITH

The great illegitimacy controversy simmered down to a slow burn when additional figures disclosed that Oak Bay isn't really that outstanding an offender after all.

On the other hand, the whole province may have to hang down its head on the matter.

Oak Bay residents were first left with a guilty conscience when figures from the provincial bureau of vital statistics revealed that in 1962 it had a rate of 9.2 per cent illegitimate births, as compared to Esquimalt's 2 per cent, Saanich's 4.4 per cent, Victoria's 7.7 per cent, and the provincial average of 7.3 per cent.

ISOLATED YEAR

But chin up, Oak Bay! A municipality that has voted so with consistency for so long need not meekly accept censure on such an isolated year.

1962 was a bad year anyway the Cullen crisis, and all that. And now, this.

Anyway, things were different in 1960 and 1961, who knows, may be different in 1963 and 1964 as well.

In 1960 the provincial average was 6.7 per cent, and there was Oak Bay doing its bit to keep the totals down with a small 4.4 per cent. And the next year, when the province was at seven per cent, Oak Bay had only five per cent.

NOT SO BLACK

Things aren't so black after all, it seems.

Esquimalt, meanwhile, was just as inconsistent—2.6 per cent in 1960, 7.4 per cent in 1961, and then back down again to 2 per cent in that fateful 1962.

Saanich was steady at 2.6 per cent, 3.8 per cent and 4.4 per cent, while Victoria had 7.3 per cent, 7.5 per cent, and 7.7 per cent in the three years.

Why the inconsistency? Well, an official explained that when working with such small numbers, a small difference can seem larger than it is.

NOT SIGNIFICANT

For instance, Oak Bay had eight illegitimate births in 1960, nine in 1961, and then 18 in 1962. It doubled, true, but nine more one way or the other is not really a significant number.

Besides, the whole thing boils down to whether or not the figures are actually correct as to the place. For instance, a girl from up-Island might list Oak Bay as her home, since she might be in a home in that community when the child is born.

Much more accurate, however, are the figures for the province as a whole—and these show a gradual increase from 2 per cent in 1925 to the 7.4 per cent in 1962.

AGE DIFFERENCE

Also interesting — if alarming — is the division of illegitimate births according to ages. In 1962 there were 21 illegitimate babies born to girls under 15; 823 to teen-agers between 15 and 19; 861 to women from ages 20 to 24, and 491 to those over 25.

But don't worry.

No figures were given for Oak Bay by itself.

Bennett Off To Ottawa

Premier Bennett boarded a plane for Ottawa Tuesday with a briefcase bulging with reasons why the Senate should grant a federal charter to the proposed Bank of British Columbia.

"British Columbia will not be turned down," said the premier.

"The Porter Commission (on banking) says we need more banks, and if more are needed B.C. is the place. I'm sure we won't continue to bow three times to the east each morning."

OTTAWA (CP) — Tom Green, one of the last of the old school of political journalists who helped to make the Parliamentary Press Gallery an institution, died Tuesday at the age of 74.

He was an institution himself. First joining the gallery as a staff writer for The Canadian Press in 1925, he served more years as a member of the gallery's executive than anyone in living memory.

Born in Ottawa and a lawyer by professional training, Mr. Green left The CP in 1937 to become correspondent for the Victoria Colonist. He continued to represent it and the Saint John Evening Times-Globe until he fell ill.

He died of a heart attack after a lengthy illness. He was a bachelor. He continued to wear black pin-breast pocket, and a black hom-stripe suits, a large white hand-burg throughout his lengthy career. A dapper man in his heyday, kerchief flopping out of his neck.

Kresge Foundation Gives to 'Y' Fund

A $5,000 donation for the Y building fund has been received from the Kresge Foundation of Detroit, Michigan.

Hugh Stephen, general manager of the building fund, called the donation "a wonderful example of a great American foundation stretching out its hand in generosity and understanding to a sister community 3,000 miles away."

"The people of Victoria have cause today," said Mr.

Stephen, "to bless the name of Stanley S. Kresge and his open-hearted philanthropy towards our city."

Target for the building fund is $1,300,000. So far pledges and gifts total $960,000 and the buildings assets and pledge of a government grant brings the fund total up to $1,125,000.

Pioneer Family

T. Todd Dies At 82

Thomas Todd, only surviving son of James Todd, Cedar Hill pioneer, died at Veterans' Hospital, Tuesday. He was 82.

Mr. Todd was born on the Tod Farm at Cedar Hill, the youngest of 18 children.

He farmed there and during the First World War served with the 58th Howitzer Artillery and for some months after the war was with the occupation forces in Germany.

LIVED WITH DAUGHTER

He retired from farming some years ago and made his home with his daughter Mrs. Lauder Ramsay at 2773 Somass.

His father, James Todd, came to Victoria from the Prairies and settled on 260 acres in the Mount Douglas area, then known as Cedar Hill.

Thomas Todd's grandfather was John Tod, well-known Victoria figure.

SECOND D ADDED

The second D was added to the family name because in the wool trade, the symbol TUD meant 40 pounds of wool and many shipments arrived at the Tod farm by mistake, according to stories told to Mr. Todd's daughter, Mrs. Ramsay.

Mrs. Ramsay and her family are Mr. Todd's only survivors.

Funeral services will be held Friday with the Rev. J. A. Roberts officiating with interment in St. Luke's Cemetery.

No Evidence Of Hate Mail

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Favreau said Tuesday that the RCMP so far has been unable to gather evidence legally admissible in court to link any individual or group of persons with publication or circulation of hate literature.

He said in a Commons reply to David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) that Attorney-General Arthur Wishart of Ontario is still ready to entertain a test case if evidence can be obtained to trace such literature to a person or persons in Ontario.

False Alarm Aboard Jet

CALGARY (UPI) — An Air Canada jetliner with 107 passengers was forced to return here, shortly after take-off Tuesday morning, when fire was indicated in one of the DC-8's four engines.

There was no fire and no injuries.

Lions' Den Serene Again

VANCOUVER (CP) — The game of musical chairs, which left wives of the British Columbia Lions out in the wet and caused head coach Dave Skrien to threaten to quit, has ended amicably.

The women will get seats equal to or better than those they occupied in Empire Stadium last season.

Skrien touched off headlines when he accused general manager Herb Capozzi of "a deliberate attempt to undermine me" by moving the wives of players and assistant coaches from free seats in prime, covered positions to uncovered seats ranging from the end zone to the 20-yard line.

"I can't coach if I am undermined and I can only view this as a deliberate attempt by the general manager to undermine me. It may seem a small thing, but team harmony is being threatened and my authority is being challenged."

If I let this go, I am dead

as a coach. This will kill me in the eyes of my football players."

Clayton B. Delbridge, club president, said the incident resulted from a misunderstanding.

The wives' seats, previously scattered through several sections of the cavernous stadium, had been consolidated into one section, he said.

In view of the uproar, however, he would see to it that the wives were given seats equal to or better than those occupied last year.

Delbridge said he hadn't known until Saturday, when informed by Skrien, that the seats had been switched.

"It was news to me. I was at a loss to understand why they were moved after we had won the Western Conference. I can't understand why the players would get seats that were not as good as those they had last year."

"If I had moved them this year I would have moved them to better seats in appreciation of what their husbands did."

Skrien, who said he would hand his resignation to the board of governors at the club's annual meeting Tuesday night unless the situation was rectified, said he was satisfied.

Earlier, he said that after the 3-0 defeat by Hamilton Tiger-Cats in an exhibition game Monday night the players were more concerned with the ticket situation than the game they had just lost.

Capozzi said he had no comment.

Orioles and White Sox Sent Reeling Yankees Take Over Once More

Baltimore Orioles and Chicago White Sox staggered out of an American League nightmare last night to find New York Yankees back in first place.

On a night when Yankees and Philadelphia Phillies were the only two of the major league's contending teams to win, the struggling Orioles were stopped twice, 4-2 and 8-5, by Cleveland Indians and the White Sox were dumped unceremoniously,

2-0 and 3-2, by Los Angeles Angels.

While all this was going on, Tom Tresh was stepping back into his old all-American boy role with the Yankees. He hit two home runs, doubled and scored in the sixth, and walked and stole second to lead the Yanks to a 7-1 victory over Washington Senators.

The Phillies got a little breathing space in the National League, moving one game in front with a 6-3 victory over Milwaukee Braves behind Jack Baldschun's sharp relief pitching.

Billy Williams' 23rd homer drove in both runs in Chicago Cubs' 2-0 win over San Francisco Giants, and Cincinnati lost its third straight game to New York Mets, 4-2. In those three games, all played at a time when the Reds could have moved in on the leaders, they have managed but four runs off Met pitching.

In other American League games last night, Kansas City handed Minnesota Twins their sixth straight loss, 5-4; Boston

Red Sox dumped Detroit 7-5, on Dick Stuart's three-run homer in the seventh inning.

Al Spangler's lead-off homer in the eighth off Don Drysdale was all Houston needed as the Colts and Bob Bruce beat the Dodgers, 1-0. A grand-slam homer by Jerry Lynch gave Pittsburgh an 8-4 win over St. Louis Cardinals.

Baldschun replaced Art Mahaffey with one out in the eighth, bases loaded and the Phillies leading Milwaukee, 4-2. He got the dangerous Hank Aaron on a force play which brought in one run, then retired Joe Torre on a tap in front of the plate.

Phillies then scored two unearned runs in the ninth to gain only their fifth victory in their last 14 games. Bobby Wine and Tony Taylor homered, and Wine singled in the winning run.

Johnny Romano's third homer of the night and a three-run homer by Woody Held triggered an eight-run uprising by Cleveland in the eighth inning of the second game against the Orioles. Romano had two homers and a double in the first game of the doubleheader.

Stuart's line shot into the left field screen for the Red Sox was his 100th hit and 24th home run, and fanned his RBI total to 84, tops in the major leagues.

AT THE 19th With Harry Young

The unseasonable weather—for Victoria at least—has had a mixed effect on the various local golf clubs.

First the repeated wet spells have produced a fine natural greenness, and the turf everywhere is in excellent shape. All this has been achieved without the expense of the heavy normal summer watering program.

But while most clubs will be saving considerably on their watering bills, they are mainly losing money heavily on a drop in green fee tickets.

The lack of sunshine has kept many visitors from sampling the local courses and so has cut down a lucrative source of revenue.

The Gorge Vale club says its sale of green fee tickets is down considerably. "Sure, we have had a lot of good weekends," said Leo Derman, "Gorge secretary," "but that is the time when our course is packed with members. We rely on good weather in mid-week to raise our green fee revenue."

Directors of the B.C. Golf Association will meet at Capilano Golf Club Friday evening, in which the main business is likely to be the selection of the B.C. junior team to play for the inter-provincial title at Charlottetown in September. Gary Smith, B.C. junior champion, and Ricky Kent, Victoria junior champion, are strong favorites for selection. The two Colwood boys were on last year's winning team.

Bill Mattick, as most people who patronize his par three golf course at Cordova Bay know, is a one-armed golfer, and a pretty good one at that.

This evening his star visitor is Joe Kirkwood, the Australian-American trick shot expert, and the two of them have arranged to play an exhibition game against Phil Taylor and Paul Trapp, past and present professionals at the Victoria Golf Club.

The point about the Mattick-Kirkwood pairing is that Joe is going to play all his shots standing on one leg only! "I reckon we are going to be about the only golfing partnership to play with only three arms and three legs between us," says Mattick.

Prior to the match, Kirkwood will give his well-known trick golf show, starting at 7 p.m. . . . out at Mattick's, just beyond Cordova Bay.

It was too bad the weather let down Stan Leonard and his Junior Golf College so badly at Royal Colwood last week. The 130 youngsters who attended the course ran into one soaking after another in just about the most miserable July week we can remember in these parts.

A query from a member of the Alberni Golf Club, asking interpretation of the rules on striking an opponent's ball in match play.

The answer is that there is no penalty. In match play the person in play has the unquestioned control of the other ball. He may ask to have it lifted and if not it must remain as it lies. The opponent has no rights.

If the opponent's ball is hit, there is no penalty on either party for the opponent may have his ball replaced in its original position or he may play it as it lies, whichever suits him best.

This rule applies whether the balls are outside or inside the 20-yard radius that governs the flagstick rule.

Most people know the St. Andrew's old course so well that U.S. columnist Red Smith got a lot of us confused in his reference to the Bishop's Nose bunker near the Swinburn Burn.

I feel he must have meant the Principal's Nose trap which catches the drive played a little too far to the left to avoid the railway out of bounds at the 16th.

Named after an early principal of St. Andrew's University, who, his said, was a fair "auld devil," So's the trap that bears his name.

But the point Red Smith sought to make, that a caddy who knows the old course is a valuable asset is no exaggeration.

There is no other course I have played that is more difficult to chart, even after it has been played many times, and the old St. Andrew's caddies who not only know where the hazards lie, but are able to tell you how and where each shot should be played are among the great golf advisers in the world.

When I played golf at St. Andrew's in the 30s, these remarkable fellows were happy to carry your bag for four or five shillings, and if you took them into the Links afterward for a pint of beer, you were their prince.

In winning his first British Open, Tony Lema got hold of one of the best, and it was nice of him to acknowledge it.

Gorge Vale won its annual home and home match with Port Angeles by 55½ points to 39½, with a sweeping victory in the return game at Gorge Sunday. Al MacLeod with 69 and Bill Wakeham with 72 were a particularly hot pair for the winning team.

The Capilano Club has offered to host the Seniors championship of Canada in 1965. The three previous championships have been held in Winnipeg, Quebec City and Montreal.

Vancouver Eights On Olympic Squad

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—The Canadian Association of Amateur Rowing Tuesday recommended sending an eight-man crew, a four-man crew and a single sculler to the Olympic Games in Tokyo in October.

The decision was reached following trials over the Henley course in which a combined Vancouver-University of British Columbia crew won the eight later.

OUTDOORS with Alec Merriman

Solid backers of proposals for a narrow ocean park all the way along the coastline from Port Renfrew to Cape Beale and Bamfield are Roger Spurling and Andy Lord, who recently hiked along the old Bamfield trail.

Idea which has been proposed by a number of Vancouver Island outdoors clubs and recreationists is for strip of the coastline, following the route of the old Bamfield telephone and life-saving line, be preserved before there is any development or alienation.

In places that park strip could be only 100 yards wide, but it would give public access to the whole seacoast from Port Renfrew to Bamfield.

Additional picnicland and access could be provided at special points at rivers, lakes and other beauty and interesting spots along the way.

The old trail is still passable, although it is reported pretty rough from Port Renfrew to Cloosee.

Spurling and Lord had planned their trip for some months and originally planned to walk from Bamfield to Cloosee and then be picked up by someone who had come down Nitinat Lake in a boat.

The settled for taking a float plane into Tsusiat Lake and walking out to Bamfield, but afterwards they wished they had flown into Brown's Bay at Nitinat Lake near Cloosee, and hired an Indian to canoe them across to the start of the trail on the west side of Nitinat bar.

Their hike from Tsusiat Lake to Pachena Bay, near Bamfield and the end of the road, was about 20 miles and took them two days.

Toughest part was from Tsusiat Lake, 1½ miles down Tsusiat Creek to the west coast line trail. There was no trail from the lake. They crashed through silt higher than themselves, waded the creek which was pretty deep, and battled their way across log jams that cluttered the creek.

That part of the trip they recall as a nightmare and it took them from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. to cover the short distance. They now agree they would have been better off to walk the six miles from Cloosee to the Tsusiat section of the trail. They describe the rest of the hike as "delightful."

"Once we hit the trail, we found it good in spots . . . sometimes it was better to walk along the beach," says Spurling.

First impressive sight on the shoreline was the Tsusiat Falls, which dump 80 feet from a cliff onto the beach.

A good foot bridge, part of the old trail, crosses the Tsusiat.

They spent the first night in the line cabin at the mouth of the Klamawa River, only a short distance above the Tsusiat. They found the Klamawa, of which many stories of fine steelhead upstream are told, a big, wide and deep river. They saw fish rising and seen fishing at the mouth.

A cable across the river appeared to be in rusty condition, so next morning they elected to wade across the Klamawa at the surfline at low tide.

They picked up the overgrown, but distinguishable trail, and then decided to beachwalk for a couple of miles along the spectacular rock shelf which predominates the coastline at that spot.

A picturesque and high suspension bridge crosses over the Tsacawis River, which also features a beautiful waterfall and a line cabin.

Beyond that point they found the trail quite overgrown and they continued to beachwalk for two or three miles along the sandstone shelf which was like a wide highway along the shore.

There is a cable car across Darling Creek, but as the tide was low they decided to wade across the creek.

They beachwalked to Michigan Creek where part of the wreck of the old steamer Michigan can still be seen.

From there they scaled the cliffs from where it was possible to look down the coastline and see Carmanah Point 20 miles southeast.

From there they followed the trail and beach to Pachena Point and Pachena Light taking in the beautiful marine vistas from along the trail. Some of this part is best hiked along the beach and they recommend a low tide to do it.

From Pachena Point to Pachena Bay is five or six miles of good trail through virgin timber stands and the full length of Pachena Beach.

When they reached Pachena Bay on schedule, Spurling's wife Jane was there in the Land Rover to meet them. She had driven from Victoria, through Nitinat to Bamfield.

From Pachena Bay it is about 10 miles to Sarita over a fair gravel road and then you are on the Mac-Powell main-line logging road.

Ale is not another name for beer.

(It's brewed bottoms up.)

We know Ale is different from beer, because we brew both. Beer yeast works willingly at the bottom of the vat. But our stubborn Ale strain starts its career at the top. So we brew our Ale upside down—with a notable difference in flavour. Will you enjoy the difference? Only one way to prove it. Same way we brew it. Bottoms up.

Dream Fulfilled With Festival

By TED GASKELL

When the curtain rises on A Midsummer Night's Dream tonight at 8:15 in the Young Building auditorium, it will be more than the start of a play for Carl Hare.

It will be yet a little more fulfillment of the dream he had when, in May of last year, a conversation with fellow professor Roger Bishop gave birth to the idea of a University of Victoria Shakespeare Festival.

A lot of thought and study was given to the idea before the $15,000 project was actually put into the hands of a committee in September.

Because of the size of the project, it had to be a town and gown affair.

The university could provide the staff and the organization but it was to the town that the committee had to look for many of the 100 actors in the three festival plays.

There are about 250 people involved in the festival, including actors, and about half these are from outside the university.

Some of the townpeople are working backstage with costumes, properties, lighting, and innumerable other phases of stage production.

The costumes, which can be seen on request after any of the festival productions, are valued at $10,000. One costume alone, a heavily padded Elizabethan cloak, ornate and exquisitely designed, is worth $800.

Victoria's festival costume bill, by comparison is only $750, which includes new costumes for Richard III and cleaning, renovation and alteration of costumes used in previous productions of the revived Dream and The Alchemist.

The festival is expected to sustain a small loss, perhaps $1,000 according to committee spokesman Michael Warren. All of its revenue will come from box office returns for plays and concerts.

Most of the money for the festival came from a special grant of $11,000 from the university with $3,000 from Canada Council and $1,000 from the Koerner Foundation.

So far there have been three showings of Richard III with other performances scheduled for July 24, Aug. 1 and Aug. 6; The Alchemist plays July 29 and 30, Aug. 5 and 8; the Dream is staged for the first time tonight, then again Thursday and Saturday, July 31 and Aug. 7.

Concerts will be held July 27 and Aug. 4 and a special lecture on the historical character of Richard III July 28.

Court Parade

Sentence

A pre-sentence report was ordered in Saanich magistrate's court Tuesday for a youth involved in a breaking and entering and theft at the Carey Road Food Market, 3824 Carey, July 12.

Richard Marynavitch, 785 Gladia, pleaded guilty to the charge Tuesday.

Court was told Marynavitch, in company with a juvenile, broke a window in the store at about 4 a.m., then hid at the nearby Mount View High School.

STOLE CIGARETTES

They then returned to the store and the juvenile entered it and stole some cigarettes before being caught in the store by Saanich police. Marynavitch ran from the store when police approached, but was arrested a short time later.

He was remanded to July 30 for pre-sentence report and sentence.

A man seen drinking beer in a car in which he was a passenger was fined $50 in city court.

Reginald F. Hall, 1185 Esquimalt Road, pleaded guilty to drinking in a public place. He was seen in the car going north on Douglas Street July 4.

Airport IS International

Special Welcome Here for Spaniards

By DON GAIN

Reactions to Victoria's new international airport were favorable as the new stone, glass and tile building opened its doors to the public for the first time yesterday.

And it is international. It has signs in, English, French and Spanish.

The handsome complex cost in the neighborhood of $800,000, federal transport department air terminal manager Jack Knowland said, and nobody seemed to object except a California tourist on his way home to Palo Alto.

"It's a little excessive," said Nicholas Guins, a recent graduate of Stanford University. "With the amount of traffic here you really don't need such a layout. I think if I were a taxpayer, I'd object."

But none of the taxpayers was objecting.

"Very, very smart," said Hurlcock Whitton, 1276 Rockland. "It compares very favorably with larger airports in the east."

"It looks nice," said Ted McLean, a visitor from Kitchener, Ont. His wife nodded assent and said she and her family were visiting her father Sydney Radley of Victoria.

"The other one outlived its usefulness," said M. J. Witter, a school principal from Prince Rupert, who drove out to have a look at it with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Witter, 1714 Oak Bay.

"We often come out just to watch the planes," his mother said. "We think it's very smart."

There were those who said they'd miss the old airport building.

"There was something nice about the old place," said Sidney taxi man Monty Collins, who is practically a fixture at the airport.

He was carpenter foreman when the airport was built and took over the taxi business in 1941. "But the new one is an improvement," he said. "It's a beautiful building."

Bessie Moorhouse, who has worked in the area for a car rental firm for 14 years, also said she would miss the "homey but dilapidated" old terminal.

"The accommodation here is better," she said, "and the seats in the waiting room are much more comfortable. However, I don't like the idea of paying 15c for coffee in the new restaurant, even if the coffee's better."

The switchover from the old building went smoothly, manager Knowland said.

Car Hits Infant In Driveway

Fourteen-month-old Michael Darin, 721 Daisy, who was knocked down by a car driven by his father Tuesday evening as he backed out of the family driveway, was in satisfactory condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital Tuesday night.

The father, Mahily Darin, told police he got into the car unaware his child had followed him out of the house.

He said as he was backing down the driveway he felt a slight bump but believed it was a stone on the driveway. Police said there were several stones on the driveway.

As the car backed out on the street the driver then noticed his son lying on the driveway.

Victim in Hospital Here

Polio Vaccine Rushed In

By A. H. MURPHY

All Royal Jubilee Hospital attendants who come in contact with Capt. George Hillier, in an iron lung as B.C.'s first poliomyelitis victim in two years, are being given Sabin oral vaccine as a precaution.

At the same time, teams from the Vancouver Island health unit stationed at Alberni, are rushing over 65 miles of rugged road to bring oral vaccine to any possible contacts in the Ucluelet-Port Alberni areas.

The condition of Capt. Hiller was said Tuesday to be slightly improved.

However, the chief of the Greater Victoria health unit, Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, said said it had been determined Capt. Hillier has poliomyelitis until tests show differently.

Dr. Whitbread admits authorities are puzzled as to how Capt. Hillier could contract the disease in such a remote area as Ucluelet.

They are investigating the possibility that the disease was brought here by people from Quebec who were believed to have been in the district recently. There has been a recent outbreak of polio in Quebec.

The chief medical officer said it had been determined Capt. Hillier had never taken either Salk or Sabin vaccine.

It was normal, he said, that a man of Capt. Hillier's age (60) would not have become immunized.

There was also the matter of isolation. Dr. Whitbread said he could understand how people in such remote areas might feel their chances of rant and car rental personnel.

"We have much better facilities," said David Weir, TCA station operations manager. "A belt conveyor system handles incoming and outgoing luggage. There is a larger waiting room and restaurant. Customs and immigration have more room and so do we in our operations room. The passenger flow should be very smooth.

"One thing we had in the old location was an area where buses could pull right into the hangar. This was excellent in wet weather but you can't expect to duplicate that. It was just a coincidence that we had a hangar to pull into."

The airport was taken over by DOT in the late 1940s, Mr. Knowland said. "It was just a temporary setup but it went on and on."

He said the new tower would be in operation this week.

Regarding the possibility of lengthening runways for jet planes, he said there was no decision but the matter was under consideration. The main runway is now 6,000 feet long.

"I understand that newer jets are being designed specifically for operation out of airports with relatively short runways," he said.

You can still take a drive out to the airport and park for free. This won't last much longer, Mr. Knowland said. Parking meters will be installed.

And if you're feeling very international you can find the door that says Caballeros. If you're a man, that is. I didn't notice what it said on the other one. Ole.

What are they looking at? Provincial government employees are intrigued by what they see in station wagon parked behind museum.

Putting on show for spectators is baby seal on floor of station wagon. Seal is in vehicle of UBC biology student David Hancock, who is making study of eagles and wild life of west coast.—(Jim Ryan)

Final Tribute to Alderman

His Works Live On

Ald. Arthur Dowell's 14 years in city office were reflected at his funeral service Tuesday in the quotation: "Their works do follow them."

In tribute to the alderman's status in Victoria, both as a businessman and an elected servant of the people, Sands funeral chapel was crowded to overflowing by people from every walk of Victoria life.

Mayor Wilson and members of city council were present as were ex-aldermen and past mayors. There were people from the business world, the civic services, provincial government and from industries and service organizations.

City hall was closed from noon until 2 p.m. in tribute to the alderman and his chair and desk in city council chamber were draped in black and purple.

The Rev. John H. Garden described Mr. Dowell as a man of sound principle in business and service in municipal life. His work for the community would not be lost in the transition, which was death, but would live on.

The coffin at the front of the chapel was decked simply with a large crimson floral spray surmounted by a white cross. The simple United Church service was followed by a short committal service in the building concourse. Cremation followed the service.

Pallbearers were Wes Fulton, George Higgs, George Murphy, Frank Leask, Jim Conyers and Howard Bowles.

Palbearers were Wes Fulton, George Higgs, George Murphy, Frank Leask, Jim Conyers and Howard Bowles.

Dr. McGee's comments seemed to indicate that scientists planned to take no heed of the appeal by Mrs. Florence G. Barr, 965 Trans-Canada Highway.

Mrs. Barr, well known in Victoria as a strong defender of animals, sent a telegram to Federal Fisheries Minister Robichaud Tuesday, and plans to start a petition.

"It's just terrible, the way they've treated this creature. Thousands of people gazing at it, a rope in its side—it's simply obscene."

The whale, meanwhile, was apparently recovering from the shock of its capture. It gulped down a live two-pound flounder on the end of a line, and the harpoon wound in its back appeared to be healing over.

The big problem now appeared to be in moving the whale from its temporary home in the Burrard drydock to its Jericho Beach pen. Officials hoped to float the drydock to the beach today, and then entice the whale to enter the new cage.

Individuals residing in B.C. who lost their U.S. citizenship under Sections 352, 355, 404 or 407 of the law should personally write to the U.S. Consulate General, 1030 West Georgia, Vancouver 5, if they are interested in regaining it.

Persons who once gained U.S. citizenship and later lost it by residing outside the country may be affected by the new ruling.

REVERSALS POSSIBLE

Young Fry To Try For Fish

The 12th annual city playground junior fishing derby will be held at Ogden Point breakwater from 1 to 4 p.m. Friday, rain or shine.

Children wishing to participate must pick up a free fishing crest in the toy department, sporting goods or children's wear at Eaton's store before the derby.

Every child who catches a fish will receive an award. The one who catches the heaviest fish will win a new bicycle.

Reorganization

Saanich Police Promoted

Merging of the detective and juvenile departments and promotion of another sergeant were two of the steps in the further reorganization of the Saanich police department announced following a special police commission meeting Tuesday night.

Promoted to the rank of sergeant in charge of traffic is Const. Ted Owens, who has been associated with traffic and school traffic safety detail for the department for some years.

Sgt. Owens' promotion brings to five the number of uniform sergeants promoted during the program. He will be on six months' probation.

In other departmental changes, Const. Jack Stone and Norman Baker have been promoted to the rank of acting detective for a six months' probationary period.

YOUTH DETAIL

In the merger of the juvenile department with the detective department juvenile officer Harry Adams has been transferred to the detective department. The juvenile section, which is also under command of recently-promoted Det. Sgt. Robin Stewart, will now be known as the youth detail division.

Juvenile officer Ed Anderson has been transferred to the detective department and Const. William Stephenson has been assigned to the traffic department.

Citizens' Status Unchanged

Naturalized American citizens may reside outside of the U.S. indefinitely without losing their citizenship under a new Supreme Court ruling.

The effect of the decision is to void certain sections of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

REVERSALS POSSIBLE

Persons who once gained U.S. citizenship and later lost it by residing outside the country may be affected by the new ruling.

Wins Favorable Reaction

The airport was taken over by DOT in the late 1940s, Mr. Knowland said. "It was just a temporary setup but it went on and on."

He said the new tower would be in operation this week.

Regarding the possibility of lengthening runways for jet planes, he said there was no decision but the matter was under consideration. The main runway is now 6,000 feet long.

"I understand that newer jets are being designed specifically for operation out of airports with relatively short runways," he said.

You can still take a drive out to the airport and park for free. This won't last much longer, Mr. Knowland said. Parking meters will be installed.

And if you're feeling very international you can find the door that says Caballeros. If you're a man, that is. I didn't notice what it said on the other one. Ole.

Mayors Insist

Cabinet Meeting 'Imperative'

Big reason the war council of metropolitan B.C.'s mayors and reeves wants to confront the cabinet on the bus fare issue is because leaders feel the Public Utilities Commission, which normally governs such matters, has had its powers slashed by the province.

The committee of municipal leaders, in a statement issued Tuesday from the office of co-chairman Mayor William Rathie, of Vancouver, said that it considered a meeting with the cabinet imperative.

An independent survey of the whole transportation situation was needed if any sort of a solution was going to be reached, the statement said, and the committee doubted if this was possible.

Cost-Sharing Urged

"The mayors and reeves are anxious to discuss with the provincial government the effects of the restricted jurisdiction of the PUC, and urge the government to share with the municipalities the cost of an independent and impartial survey of the total transportation situation," the statement said.

It also referred to Premier Bennett's statement this week that it would be inappropriate to meet with the cabinet with the application for higher fares before the PUC.

The committee did not seek to circumvent the role of the PUC, the statement said, but still considered a meeting with the cabinet a necessity.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said Tuesday that Victoria's position on the bus fare increase issue had been made clear in two Vancouver caucuses. The question of seeking a meeting with the cabinet was being handled by Mayor Rathie's office.

Scientists Present Pregnancy Possibility

Vancouver's chatty killer whale might be an expectant mother, scientists suggested Tuesday. They estimate that between 30 and 50 per cent of the female whales in a pod become pregnant, and the gestation period is about a year. This would mean any baby whale wouldn't make an appearance until next May.

City Woman Seeks Whale's Release

A Victoria woman said Tuesday that support has been overwhelming for her stand that Vancouver's captive killer whale should be released.

But plans to house the whale in its new pen off Jericho Beach nevertheless continued full speed ahead. The whale took its first food Tuesday and scientists hoped that the creature would survive the rigors of its capture.

"The main problem is to acclimatize the whale," said Dr. Pat McGee, the Liberal MLA and neuro-chemist from the University of British Columbia.

Dr. McGee's comments seemed to indicate that scientists planned to take no heed of the appeal by Mrs. Florence G. Barr, 965 Trans-Canada Highway.

Mrs. Barr, well known in Victoria as a strong defender of animals, sent a telegram to Federal Fisheries Minister Robichaud Tuesday, and plans to start a petition.

"It's just terrible, the way they've treated this creature. Thousands of people gazing at it, a rope in its side—it's simply obscene."

The whale, meanwhile, was apparently recovering from the shock of its capture. It gulped down a live two-pound flounder on the end of a line, and the harpoon wound in its back appeared to be healing over.

The big problem now appeared to be in moving the whale from its temporary home in the Burrard drydock to its Jericho Beach pen. Officials hoped to float the drydock to the beach today, and then entice the whale to enter the new cage.

The statement cited a 1948 order-in-council which instructed the PUC to treat as a single unit all three of the then B.C. Electric services, transit, gas and electricity, when dealing with a rate boost application.

The rescinding of this order in May of this year apparently had the effect of limiting the field of inquiry by the PUC.

The successful candidates will take part in private discussions with representatives of six Greater Victoria municipalities and the department of municipal affairs on the framing of legislation to permit establishment of a joint services board.

Candidates for election must be a resident land owner within the area they are seeking to represent. 21 or over, and British subjects.

Government officials said Tuesday returning officers have been appointed for each area. Voters lists will be the same as those used for school board elections but anyone who is qualified and whose name isn't listed can add it by making a sworn statement to the returning officer.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell proposed the joint services scheme to a meeting attended by officials and elected representatives from all parts of the Capital Region. The plan was endorsed in principle at that time.

SOOKE INCLUDED

Before the next step, that of framing legislation in consultation with those who would have to operate the regional board, the minister promised to hold elections so that unorganized areas could have their say.

Sooke wasn't included in the original scheme but residents protested and the government has taken steps to extend the boundaries to include the built-up section of the outlying area.

More Divers Lend Hand

Six more navy divers have left for Vancouver to aid in the construction of a pen for the captive killer whale.

The six, from the diving staff at Colwood, will join forces with Lt.-Cmdr. Arthur Rowse and the two men already with him in construction of the pen at Jericho Beach.

Newsstand Smut Committee Target

The teeth of the movement would be provided by Section 150 of the Criminal Code, which enables any private citizen to place a charge which is then taken up by the public prosecutor.

"We hope we would never have to lay a charge," said Canon Butler, "but we always could if we had to. The machinery is there."

Canon Butler envisaged that the drive would proceed more from the threat of action rather than the action itself.

Topless Issue

Pucci Predicted It But Now Ignores It

FLORENCE (AP)—Emilio Pucci, who last summer predicted women would wear topless swim suits, acted at the Florence fashion show Monday as though he never heard of the idea.

The dynamic designer galvanized the Italian Fall and winter showings by making Africa his theme. He covered up his models in burnouses from head to toe, featured witch doctor fright wigs—and spoke out for conventional bathing suits.

The Pucci display opened with two stunning Negro girls, wrapped in wildly printed silk burnouses, strolling onto the Pitti Palace runway as a commentator intoned: "Africa in the world of fashions."

He was doing things in his usual dramatic style. Off came the hooded burnouses to reveal standard, brief bikinis—complete with tops. Pucci's prediction here last year that women would be wearing topless bathing suits within five years created a sensation. But he had no truck with the topless suit himself.

Instead, he alternated T-shirt tank suits with bikinis under silken wraps. The tank suits could bring back the pron front swim suits. They were smooth pullovers across the front, short in the back.

SHIRTS REVERSIBLE

His long slim silk harem dress cover-ups had hip deep batwing sleeves this season. His shirts are reversible, velvet on one side, silk on the other. The two fabrics are printed in the same pattern but in wildly different color schemes.

It is usually impossible to describe a Pucci print, but the

Paris Shows

PARIS (UPI)—As Paris prepared for the fall fashion shows opening next Monday, a check of Paris streets indicates what styles from the spring-summer high fashion showings were picked up by ordinary French women.

The most copied style from last February's shows was the back hairbow of Chanel. At least one out of every five women on the street still wear them, no matter what age.

The entire Chanel look still is popular. French women forever wear copies of those Chanel black-toed sling-back shoes, and now copies of the shoes have shown up in all colors and prices. Every handbag shop still features reproductions of the Chanel quilted bag with chain handle.

Some observers think less Chanel-type suits appeared in Paris shops this spring because hordes of American tourists are showing up in the smart hotels in their New York-made copies.

MYSTERY NOTE

Designer Frederico Forquet provided the mystery note, not only in evening creations but also in muffled day clothes. Forquet opened the high fashion showings here after a weekend of boutique presentations.

It was beginning to appear that exposure under chiffon might be the solution to the burning topless question. In the boutique shows Glans presented a sheer chiffon pullover worn over nothing but with black patch pockets placed at crucial points.

Monday Forquet showed low, strapless evening gowns that barely covered the bosom. These gowns were thinly disguised by a layer of chiffon.

His tunic suit and coat costumes were wrapped almost to the eyes by big, soft hood-scarves, or wide wrap-around scarves attached to hats.

Shoulders were wide, soft and seamless. Various shaped bodice seams kept coats and suits skimming close in front. Necks were high and collarless, to make room for the bulky scarves and hoods.

Legion LA Garden Fete Successful

Sunny skies, a lovely garden and delicious home baking were the ingredients for a successful garden party held at the home of Lt.-Cmdr. (Retd.) J. A. Wilson and Mrs. Wilson, by the Ladies' Auxiliary to Branch No. 172, Esquimalt Royal Canadian Legion.

Mrs. M. Miskulin opened the affair and was presented with a red rose corsage by Mrs. A. Ketchell, president.

Mrs. H. A. Winnett, honorary president, was special guest. Mrs. Wilson, general convener, was assisted by Mrs. E. Mendres, Mrs. Ketchell, Mrs. M. Watson and Mrs. W. Hill.

In charge of the home baking stall were Mrs. C. McLeod and Mrs. F. Lamber.

Mrs. L. Hardy looked after the raffle tickets and Mrs. M. Swanbeck, the tea tickets.

Ann

Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Be an angel and pull me out of the Valley of Indecision. Should I marry the guy or not?

Lorrie is 30. I am 23. We have gone together 13 months. He was married five years ago but never talks about it. My parents try to conceal their dislike for him, but it shows.

Lorrie is a salesman, and a good one, but he is always short of money. He has lost his wallet three times since I've known him and I've had to lend him money to make the payments on his car.

Jealousy is his worst fault. He has a habit of telephoning me after every date—he claims it's to say "Good night" but actually he's checking to see if I'm late.

One night I was in the shower and didn't hear the phone. He came over and sat on the porch all night. I found him asleep on the swing when I went to work next morning at 7:30. I had a tough time convincing him I had been in the house the whole time.

Now, on the positive side: He is very good-looking and appeals to me physically. Well, that does it. I have been sitting here for 10 minutes and I can't think of one other thing to say.

Don't bother to answer this letter. You have helped me more than you know. Thank you.—EYES OPENED.

Dear Eyes: I'm not answering your letter—just printing it. It may open a few other eyes.

Dear Ann Landers: The young woman next door is a disorganized, addle-brained wisp of a thing who manages to have a baby every year with about as much effort as most people use to whip up a batch of cookies.

I'm not criticizing large families, Ann, but for the last three years I am the one who has been stuck with her children when she has gone to the hospital.

Her labor pains always come as a big surprise—as if she didn't even know she was pregnant. Last night her husband appeared at the door with their four youngsters and gasped;

"Ellie has to go to the hospital right away. Please help us out."

"Help us out" means five days of caring for their four and my three.

I have known since February that Ellie would be needing help about this time. She had five months to make arrangements. What should I do next year?—JUST PLAIN MAD

Dear Just: The minute you notice Ellie is pregnant help her line up someone who can come at a moment's notice. Check periodically to make sure the woman can be depended on. If the tribe appears at your door next year tell them you'll go to their house and sit with the kids till the hired woman arrives.

Dear Ann Landers: What does a wink mean? A certain flirt in our crowd has always made a big fuss over my husband. Although he pretends he hasn't noticed, I'm sure he must be very much aware of it.

Last night at a party I watched this woman across the room and when something amusing was said by one of the guests she gave my husband a very seductive wink. I said nothing to him but it irritated me.

And now I would like you to tell me—what does a wink actually mean?—SLIGHTLY JEALOUS

Dear Jealous: Some winks are harmless little gestures—used to punctuate sentences. These winks are about as sexy as a jab in the ribs with a sharp elbow.

And then there is the wink that telegraphs a feeling of intimacy—to let the receiver know he has been singled out to share a delicious secret moment. But why be concerned? Your husband was the receiver, not the sender.

Grandmother's Ring For Something Old

Her grandmother's wedding ring was the "something old" worn by Pauline Irene Reay, when she exchanged marriage vows with Richard Michael Scherr.

Given in marriage by her father, she wore a classic-styled floor-length gown of nylon tulle over rustling taffeta, highlighted with re-embroidered Alencon lace appliques dusted with sparkling paillettes. The bodice featured a portrait neckline and lily point sleeves and the full skirt was highlighted with dainty sweetheart bows.

A crown of paillettes and teardrop crystals held the chapel-length, three-tier, illusion net veil. She carried white feathered carnations and Johanna Hill roses.

Father J. Planeta officiated at the nuptial mass in Sacred Heart Church. Arrangements of white and yellow gladioli were used as decoration. Soloist was Mrs. A. Bacchus.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Reay, 1035 Nicholson Street, and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Scherr, 1133 Union Road.

Street-length gowns of aqua crystalline with headpieces of net and flowers were worn by the matron of honor, Mrs. K. Oliver, and bridesmaid, Miss Anne Burkard. Only jewelry was single strand pearl necklaces and they carried tangerine carnations.

International Beauties Now Living in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—Three international beauty queens—Miss India 1961, Miss Italy 1960 and Miss Philippines 1958—have set up housekeeping in Montreal, a coincidence resulting from their husband's jobs.

Mrs. Luigi Allegra, who placed sixth in the Miss World pageant in 1960 as Miss Italy, came here four months ago when her doctor-husband registered for a post-graduate course at the University of Montreal.

They plan to return to Sicily in a year where Dr. Allegra will resume his work as an assistant professor of pulmonary diseases at the University of Palermo.

Mrs. John Medhurst, despite her newly acquired name, still reigns technically as Miss India since no one has been chosen to succeed her. She moved here in December after marrying an English businessman transferred to Montreal from India.

Miss Philippines, now Mrs. Luciano Laguardia, married an Italian banker who was sent here 2½ years ago. They have a young son born in Rome just before they left.

Laila Allegra and Carmen Laguardia have been friends for some time but Laila didn't know Carmen had been Miss Philippines.

"I knew Laila was Miss Italy but we never talked about it," says Carmen.

LITTLE UN Among them the girls speak a flock of languages. Carmen, who says she is a mixture of Malayan, Chinese, Spanish, English and French, speaks Italian, Spanish, English and Tagalog, "our national language," as well as some French.

Laila, who lived in Egypt as a child, speaks Arabic, Hindi, Marathi, Kongani spoken in Goa, Swahili and "a little French."

Veronica Medhurst, whose parents came from Goa, the former Portuguese enclave in India, speaks English, Hindi, Marathi, Kongani spoken in Goa, Swahili and "a little French."

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Barker, 241 Niagara Street, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Gail Charlotte, to Mr. Danny Joseph Normandeau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor J. Normandeau, 2522 Rose Street. The wedding will take place August 1 at 7:30 p.m. in Centennial United Church with Rev. M. W. Lees officiating. —(Kandid Kamera)

Wisteria Takes Time

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS
When you invest a healthy sum of money in a permanent plant for the decoration of your home grounds, you have a right to expect the thing will grow, given reasonably intelligent planting and care. If it doesn't, you go around to the nurseryman and give him What For, demanding a replacement or your money back.

It is well to remember, though, that our local growers are respected citizens with a substantial stake in the community, who would never knowingly sell a dud plant.

I have run across a few gyp artists in the mail order field, selling worthless junk at catchpenny prices, but never in my experience have I encountered blatant dishonesty among the men who grow the stuff—as distinct from those who merely buy and sell it.

I might mention, too, that every nurseryman-grower of my acquaintance has been a dedicated person who would sooner grow things than eat, and while he has had to force himself to become a salesman and businessman, his true interest lies in the plants themselves.

To such men, the unloading of a dud plant on an unsuspecting customer would be a desecration.

The thing that brought these thoughts to mind was an irate letter from a lady who bought a Wisteria last March, planted it carefully, and has been doing a slow burn ever since while waiting for the thing to leaf out and start growing. The vine has been sitting there doing nothing at all, to all appearances as dead as the proverbial doornail, and I imagine its owner wrote to me in the hope of confirming her impression that the nurseryman is a crook.

Actually, my guess is that her Wisteria is perfectly sound and healthy and is growing vigorously below ground, for it is a common occurrence with this grand flowering vine for a newly planted specimen to remain dormant and leafless for half a year or more while the roots are getting themselves established in their new home. New topgrowth will probably appear in August or September and will grow all the more vigorously because of its well-established root system.

I had to learn the hard way that the Wisteria is often a slow starter, for I had the same experience.

My vine, purchased and planted in early spring, remained a leafless stick all through the early summer, but in my case I blamed my own inept planting rather than cussing out the nurseryman. By Dominion Day I had given up all hope, so I pulled the thing up by the roots and chucked it on the compost heap.

That fall, while toting a load of fallen leaves to the compost heap, I noticed some unfamiliar shoots growing out through the side of the pile, and upon investigating, there was my Wisteria, as husky as a hound dog and flourishing like a green bay tree. Replanted against the house, it never looked back, and today its lovely racemes of mauve blooms is a sight to behold.

Another common complaint with Wisteria is failure to bloom, and I imagine the unfortunate nurseryman comes in for his share of abuse on this score too. Lack of bloom on an otherwise healthy vine is almost always due to lack of pruning or improper pruning, and this will be discussed in a future column.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Ingrid's Pia Licks Wounds

LONDON (NANA) — Ingrid Bergman's actress daughter, Pia Lindstrom, is living in Rome and trying to forget a famous doctor with whom she thought she was in love.

Anthony Quinn has settled his tax problems with the U.S. I was told by a friend of his in London. In spite of which Tony is not planning to return to New York in the immediate future. After his High Wind in Jamaica, Tony hops to Haiti to star as Jean Christophe, the emperor of that island who liberated his people from the French and then shot himself with a silver bullet. Rather a picturesque way of ending it all... Mr. Quinn by the way, seems no longer anxious to get a divorce from estranged wife, Katherine, in order to marry Yolanda, the mother of his two sons, which is just as well because Katie is in no hurry to give him one.

I am sorry for Leslie Caron who flew from London a few days ago to Paris for more fittings on her clothes for The Favor with Rock Hudson in Hollywood. She looked so unhappy in the airport photograph. She had thought that getting a divorce from Peter Hall and having her children with her in Hollywood would all be pleasantly arranged. As of now, the children will remain in London... To make things more depressing, it has now been decided that Warren Beatty will make his picture, What's new, Pussycat! in France, near the end of August.

It would be even drearier for Alfred Hitchcock to read the British reviews for his Marnie movie with Tippi Hedren and Sean Connery. I wish that Hitch would return to his straight out-and-out murder mysteries. It is what he does best... Talking of Marnie, her grace, Princess Kelly, with Prince Rainier and the David Niven have been wavebound in their yacht in the Monaco harbor. They were set for a cruise to Majorca but couldn't get out. Grace, if you remember, was supposed to do Marnie, and backed out when her people said no.

Audrey Hepburn was asked, "What will you do when Mel Ferrer, (her husband) is making El Greco in Madrid?" To which the good little wife and mother replied, "I'm just going to see that Mel eats enough food and takes care of himself." Audrey is still pencil-thin and absolutely no more pictures for her until next year... The same for Shirley Maclaine who is not that thin but who does not want to work that hard.

The Crazy Horse strippey in Paris caused gasps when the young ladies who perform there put on a topless swimsuit fashion show. The patrons found this more shocking than when the said young ladies parade completely in the nude. You figure this out.

Mrs. Peter Sellers is the girl most likely to land in the Andrew Stone picture in England. The Secret of My Success. Husband Peter wants his pretty wife to have a career — just as long as it is in the same country. The Fox lawsuit for $2,000,000 against the Sellers is still pending.

Beatle Paul McCartney has a 20-year-old brother who is also in show business. "He doesn't play a guitar or sing," said their father, James, "but he acts." Paul's mother died eight years ago and he delights in doing wonderful things for his dad. Just bought him a beautiful home in Liverpool — in addition to that racehorse, Drake's Drum.

David Merrick was supposed to bring Fings Ain't Wot They Used T'be to Broadway. Some people in London liked the play and the star, James Booth better than Oliver! I chatted with Mr. Booth at lunch and he had no ideal what had happened to the plans for New York. In any case he was leaving almost immediately for Prague to star in the film, 90 Degrees in the Shade, with his wife and two small children. James and the missus also believe that a family that lives together, remains together.

Merle Oberon is in London and staying with her good friends, the Douglas Fairbanks Juniors. Merle seems to have dropped her plans to continue with her movie career. With all of Merle's money and jewels, I don't know why she bothered to make the last one. She looks terrific and ditto for her great collection of jewels.

When the French newspaper Le Figaro panned an appearance of the Beatles, Paul McCartney dead-panned, "What can you expect from a barber's newspaper?"

While Peter Ustinov is re-writing Lady L which MGM abandoned after spending $1,000,000, producer Carlo Ponti is contacting Paul Newman to join Sophia Loren and David Niven. The Roman Gary story, which Ustinov will direct, will be filmed in Rome and Paris. Seems to me there are just as many movies being planned for Europe than at any time in recent years. In spite of the talk of production returning to Hollywood.

Diner's Club Goofs

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Diner's Club, that hallmark of America's spend-now-pay-later society, is a bit short on credit here these days.

The reason: The club tried to publicize Montreal and the surrounding area.

The attempt, in the July issue of the club magazine, didn't quite come off. In fact, according to irate Montrealers, it was a complete flop.

The five-page article written by magazine editor Sam Boal, had many nice things to say about Montreal and the surrounding area. It spoke in flattering terms of the city's building boom, its Parisian restaurants, the beauty of the nearby Laurentian landscape and the quiet relaxation of its many lodges.

But it had other things to say, too. And they made Montrealers so mad they can't seem to remember the compliments.

Boal, a veteran travel writer, listed among Montreal's charms the "lumber-jack food of Montreal's early history" supposedly available here and the fact that "across from the hotels you might be able to buy a team of husky dogs for your travels up north."

Montrealers, it turns out, don't regard either themselves or their ancestors as lumberjacks. Nor are they aware of the husky dog rental agency.

Boal informed his readers that all residents of Quebec were "Quebec-quois"; the local citizenry reserves the term "Quebecois" for those of French ancestry; Boal misplaced Mount Royal, dominant feature of the city's landscape, by moving it to the edge of the city. And he translated Chez Pierre, a respectable Lyonnais restaurant, into "Pete's Hamburgerteria."

His literary sins also included some faulty history — he suggested Jacques Cartier founded Montreal; some faulty arithmetic — he claimed Dubois' outstanding Smiths 7-to-1 in the city telephone book which, in fact, gives the Smiths a 14-7 edge; and some faulty name-calling — he christened well-known local comedian Jacques Labrecque "Laheque."

The result was something less than a boon for the Diner's Club.

Good Old Days Debunked

By HAL BOYLE

Those good old days. Oh, those good old days!

Old-timers 60 years of age or more like to drop a tear in their sarsaparilla as they recall how much better and more romantic life was in their youth than it is now.

But was it really? The passage of time casts an illusory glow over the past that gives it a sentimental lustre. We have an idea that if the average old-timer was compelled now to live again for a month as he did in his childhood, he'd kick like a mule and scream like a banshee.

When old-timers reminisce, they don't dwell on such points as:

Probably not half the homes had indoor plumbing.

Most homes were heated by pot-bellied stoves or bawky coal furnaces, the ashes from which had to be lugged out with monotonous regularity.

People worked a 50- to 60-hour week.

When a rug had to be cleaned it was hung on a line in the backyard and dust was spanked out with a beater.

If you were wealthy enough to afford a car, you had to hand-crank it to get the motor started. The roads were so bad you were lucky if you went 100 miles without a flat tire; if you did get a flat tire, you had to fix it yourself.

Most women had lost their beauty by the time they were 40; most men were considered old at 45.

Pensions were unheard of in most industries. A big problem to the laboring man was to keep from winding up in the poorhouse — his constant fear.

There were no electric washing machines. Wives had to douse the family's grimy duds in tubs, and launder them by hand or with a scrubbing brush on a ridged washboard.

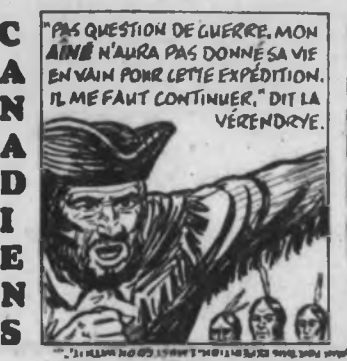

Winters were long and cold; summers long and hot. Air-conditioning was achieved by fanning oneself.

The kitchen held no gleaming refrigerator. The pan under the icebox had to be emptied daily.

Women had to lace themselves into corsets so tightly they couldn't swallow a grape without feeling uncomfortable.

What do they mean "the good old days"? About all they had we don't have is a big foamy glass of nickel beer. And it's hardly worth turning the calendar back just for that.

Collection of Haida Treasures

—George N. Y. Simpson

Worth $100,000

Haida Art for Sale Preferably in Canada

The nephew of a 19th and 20th century West-Coast trader who obtained a treasure of Haida Indian art from the Queen Charlottes announces his uncle's 60-piece collection is for sale—to Canadians, he hopes.

The nephew is Donald McAlister, 663 Monterey; the uncle, R. G. Cunningham, who died in 1954 at 82 after living on the Skeena river and west coast all his life. There are 60 pieces in the collection, including argillite figures, a Haida chest made of argillite set on figures of carved frogs, a sheep horn ceremonial spoon, and a carving depicting the legend of the Bear Mother.

Mr. McAlister values his collection in excess of $100,000. He doesn't wish to consider American offers—if he can sell to a Canadian government or a Canadian institution or a private Canadian for about $75,000.

Show Cat Missing In Sooke

A prize-winning, non-pedigree cat has gone missing in Sooke.

The fluffy, part-Persian tortoiseshell cat disappeared Saturday in East Sooke when its owners, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ruston, 2614 Cavendish, were visiting neighbors near their Sooke summer cabin.

The cat, named Cookie, won a raft of prizes at the Victoria Cat Club show in April, including six first prizes. It was entered in the household pets class.

Mr. Ruston said the cat often wanders away from home, but always returns, so she is afraid someone may have picked it up, thinking it was a stray.

Anyone who may have seen the cat is asked to call Mrs. Ruston at EV 4-7539.

Gilbey's unfold the proper decoration for a Tom Collins

Some gins have rather strong flavouring. Others are utterly tasteless. Gilbey's London Dry has a perfect balance for a memorable Tom Collins. A dry flavour that has been the international favourite since 1873. Quite a long time.

The maraschino cherry makes a bright target at the bottom of your Tom Collins. Be sure to drop in the cherry before you add the ice.

The Harris Survey

Barry Gains in South

In a just-completed survey of a cross-section of American voters, Sen. Barry Goldwater has gained 10 percentage points in his race against President Johnson, as compared with the standings before the Republican convention.

However, Democrat Johnson still leads Republican

Goldwater by 64-36 percent. And this is still the widest lead enjoyed by any candidate for president in modern times at this stage of a campaign. Significantly, however, Goldwater has now surged into a clear lead in the south.

The same voters who were surveyed on the eve of the recent Republican convention were questioned immediately following Goldwater's acceptance speech. They were asked to express their choice between President Johnson and Senator Goldwater on the assumption that Governor Wallace of Alabama was not a candidate.

President Johnson's total has fallen from a high of 72 per cent, down 11 points to 61 per cent, before the undecided vote is allocated. Senator Goldwater has gained nine points, rising from 22 to 31 per cent. Of the current eight per cent who have not made up their minds, five per cent have a dominant Republican voting background, while the remaining three per cent tend to be more Democratic in their orientation.

In the final breakdown of 64-36 per cent, the undecided have been allotted on the basis of their past voting behavior.

The regional patterns show gains for the new GOP nominee in every section of the country. However, Goldwater's most spectacular advances have been scored in the south.

Results by Regions

Post-Convention
Johnson Goldwater
East	74% 26%
Midwest	64 36
South	45 55
West	69 31

Pre-Convention
East	80 20
Midwest	74 26
South	61 39
West	80 20

The sizable Goldwater gain in the south—a full 16 points in less than three weeks—is a sharp contrast to the small advance in the east, where Goldwater has moved up only six points.

In all cases, these shifts represent actual changes in attitudes by the same voters who were interviewed before the convention in San Francisco. Their new attitude shows how dramatically voters change their minds in the course of campaigns. This survey represents public opinion as of now. As the campaign unfolds, further shifts—one way or another—will be spotted and analyzed.

At any rate, in the days immediately following his nomination as the GOP standard-bearer Senator Goldwater has narrowed the wide gap that had existed between himself and Mr. Johnson. There is still a full 30-

Pickpockets Offer 'Insurance'

TOKYO (UPI) — Police report arrests of 65 pickpockets in an attempt to clean up the city in advance of the Olympic Games.

A spokesman said Tokyo's pickpockets are "among the world's cleverest," and so well organized that their leaders are arranging to offer a selected number as "scapegoats" with plans to provide for their families until they are released.

FBI Moves In

RIOTS SPREAD TO BROOKLYN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Club-swinging riot police clashed with hundreds of unruly Negroes in a racially-troubled area of Brooklyn Tuesday, firing gunshots into the air as they dodged bottles hurled from the mob.

At the same time, police suddenly sealed off a large section of Harlem, scene of racial violence which caused bloodshed for three previous nights, when unruly crowds began gathering at intersections.

The incidents came just hours after President Johnson ordered federal agents into Harlem, largest Negro community in the United States, and declared that U.S. citizens "have a right to protection of life and limb" whether in the rural south "or a street in New York City."

WORST INCIDENT

The incident late Tuesday in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn was by far the worst of the day and brought at least 200 police to the scene. The situation in Harlem was calm by comparison.

At one point, a bottle sailed from a crowd of Negro teenagers, narrowly missing a policeman. Seven patrolmen plunged into the crowd, swinging night sticks.

Four Negroes were knocked to the sidewalks, all of them bleeding. Two of the injured youths were identified as Herron Ward, 17, and James Walker, 15.

PATROLMEN PUSHED

The police then fired a volley of shots over the heads of the crowd for at least three minutes. Gradually, the mob was dispersed.

At 8 p.m. PDT, police broke up a large crowd of Negroes in Harlem at 116th St. and Seventh Ave. Officers were dispatched to other sections of Harlem to assist patrolmen being pushed around in scattered incidents.

A UPI reporter at the scene of the Brooklyn fighting was approached by three young Negroes. "Don't worry, man,"

Boy Drowns At Island Campsite

NANAIMO (CP) — Barry Wait, 12, drowned Tuesday while swimming at a campsite near Yellow Point, 12 miles south of here.

Barry, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wait of Ladysmith, was said to have been a good swimmer. He disappeared while swimming in the sea and his body was recovered soon after.

'Wake Up OAS'

Cuban Exiles Protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cuban exiles clashed with police in a wild melee outside as the 20-nation inter-American conference convened Tuesday amidst growing sentiment for total diplomatic and trade isolation of Fidel Castro's Cuba.

As the foreign ministers began their four-day meeting to consider sanctions against the Communist Caribbean nation, several hundred Cubans — among some 5,000 who set out to stage a peaceful demonstration — fought and struggled with scores of police.

They threw stones, they jeered and cheered. They chanted "Cuba Si, Russia No." They carried banners saying in both English and Spanish, "We Save Cuba or We Lose America."

"Wake Up OAS," said another banner, referring to the Organization of American States.

Only quick action by mounted patrolmen who rode into the crowd broke up the melee.

Communal Clashes Shake Singapore

SINGAPORE (Reuters) — Four persons were killed and 17 injured in six hours of communal clashes between Malays and Chinese here Tuesday.

Police reported the fighting had stopped after a curfew was imposed on the island.

The clashes broke out between groups of Malays and Chinese during an afternoon procession marking the birthday of the Moslem prophet Mohammed.

POLICE CALLED
Hundreds of police were called out as the fighting spread. Stores and street stalls owned by Chinese were wrecked, cars overturned and motorcycles and trishaws — three-wheeled rickshaws — were thrown into storm drains.

Speaking in a television broadcast Tuesday night, Singapore's Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew said some persons "probably with Indonesian co-operation," had been exploiting the atmosphere "brought on by propaganda in the past few months."

Key Senators Spark Revolt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican presidential nominee, Barry Goldwater was faced with a budding revolt of party moderates Tuesday when both New York senators announced that they are withholding support for his national ticket.

There were indications that similar actions might be taken by some other GOP leaders. Senator Kenneth Keating, who made his statement here, said he had discussed his action with party leaders in other areas but "I would want them to speak for themselves."

STATE PLATFORM

Keating issued a statement and held a news conference here after his New York colleague, Senator Jacob Javits, announced that he was withholding support for the ticket of Goldwater and Rep. William Miller who is also a New York Republican.

Both Javits and Keating called for the formulation of a state GOP platform. Both said they were not bolting the GOP and would continue as Republicans. Both held out hope—but apparently not much of it—that Goldwater might alter his position and policies so as to make it possible to support him.

NO COMMENT

Goldwater, working at home on the mail which has been piling up since his nomination in San Francisco last week, sent word, after the Javits announcement, that he would have no comment for the present.

In a separate news conference Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., told newsmen he thinks the withdrawal of Alabama Gov. Wallace from the presidential race may be of "material advantage" to the Goldwater campaign.

INDEPENDENT

Even before the convention in San Francisco, Keating — who seeks re-election this fall—had indicated he would conduct his campaign independently if he decided to run for re-election.

'Several Years,' Says Judy

Health Plan Far Off

OTTAWA (CP) — A comprehensive system of medical and health care on a national basis appears to be several years off.

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said at the end of a two-day federal-provincial health ministers conference Tuesday she hopes to have a draft program ready for preliminary talks with the provinces early next year.

At the request of the provinces, the draft would aim at stage-by-stage implementation of some of the recommendations of the Hall royal commission on health services.

POLICY BY 1965
"We hope to be able by early 1965 to develop a policy of how much of the plan we would be in a financial position to offer the provinces," Miss LaMarsh told a press conference.

She said the federal and provincial governments accept the "inevitability" of medical care insurance. But she made it plain that the governing factor will be the resources available to the governments involved.

The Hall commission suggestion of provincial sweepstakes to help finance a plan was mentioned. "There was a laugh and that was that," she said.

WILL MOVE SLOWLY
The conference had shown "we will have to move rather more slowly than some would wish."

Meanwhile, she said, a technical committee will work on defining what kind of medical patient care should be covered in the current hospital insurance program.

The provinces had urged that mental and tubercular patient care be covered but "we gave them at this time no indication that now or in the immediate future we would be prepared to assume the cost."

The provinces also were to provide Ottawa with estimates of their spending on hospital construction between now and 1968, when current federal con-

Bailiff Awaits Hal Banks

MONTREAL (CP) — Bailiff Andre Landriau failed to apprehend Hal Banks Tuesday in two visits to the suburban Pointe Claire home of the deceased president of the Seafarers' International Union.

Mr. Landriau was trying to serve a writ of arrest on Banks for the former waterfront leader to be taken to north-end Bordaux Jail to being serving a 30-day sentence for contempt of court.

The provinces had urged that

Kremlin Pulls Plug on Water Polo Team

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union's water polo team has been disbanded for smuggling foreign clothing into the country and will not go to the 1964 Olympic Games.

The team recently returned from a disastrous foreign tour that included losses to Romania and Yugoslavia, two ties, and only one victory.

tacked 10 of the 11 players as well as the coaches.

"They had no time to think of the outcome of the sports matches while goods for smuggling waited under their beds in the hotel," Komsomolskaya Pravda said.

The paper said the team was stopped at a Soviet customs checkpoint while returning from the trip.

"They turned white at the cus-

tom's house when asked to open their suitcases," the newspaper said. "Their suitcases were full of foreign goods... Who needs so many clothes?"

"The water polo players tried to explain they bought them for their poor relations. That's a lie!"

"They were bought not for presents but for speculation (a serious crime in the Soviet Union). There was only one sportsman who did not exchange his dignity for the foreign rags," Komsomolskaya Pravda said.

The team, according to the newspaper, has been "disbanded for... losing the honor of Soviet sportsmen."

Another team will be recruited for the "four-year road to the Olympics," the newspaper said, indicating no effort would be made to form another team in time for this year's Olympics.

Illness Shows Comedian Not Forgotten by Fans

HOLLYWOOD — Stan Laurel, 75-year-old surviving member of the all-time great comedy team of Laurel and Hardy, lies ill today in a hospital from a diabetic attack. He's been there since last Thursday—and no one is supposed to know about it. But somehow, 1,000 letters a day have come to the hospital from Laurel and Hardy fans. "Stanley is amazed that people are so concerned," said one close friend. Corpses were carried Tuesday following the deaths May 30 of Patricia Peddington and Betty Harkin.

SAN FRANCISCO — Lawyer Melvin M. Belli filed a $5,000,000 libel and slander suit Monday against Walter E. Craig, president of the American Bar Association.

Belli charged that Craig told a press conference and a meeting of lawyers in San Francisco that he had been "unethical" in calling Jack Ruby's conviction "a victory for bigotry and injustice."

VANCOUVER — An autopsy showed that Mrs. Lillian Barker, who made Canadian surgical history with insertion of three artificial valves in her heart, died from complications not related to the operation. Mrs. Barker, 51-year-old wife of a gardener, was the first Canadian to have three defective heart valves replaced by plastic substitutes. She died 11 hours after returning home from hospital at the weekend.

VANCOUVER — Coroner Glen McDonald Monday rapped beer parlor operators who sell beer to patrons until their money is gone, then heave them out on the street.

He made the comment at the inquest of Walter Scott McNeil who died July 15 in the city jail from acute laryngitis.

LONDON — Jewish peer Lord Mancroft, forced to resign seven months ago from the London board of Norwich Union Life Insurance Society, says he has been hit by Arab pressure again. On his return from an Israeli business trip, Baron Mancroft was shown a newspaper report saying he had been asked to withdraw as a presidential candidate of the London Chamber of Commerce.

NEW ORLEANS — Dr. Mary Stults Sherman, 51, an orthopedic surgeon, was found slain in her fashionable apartment Tuesday. Police said Dr. Sherman, a widow who lived alone, was stabbed eight times and then set on fire as she lay wounded in bed.

STUTTGART — Conrad Young of the U.S. Army Medical Corp was indicted Tuesday of deserting to Communist East Germany and for being absent without leave. He was sentenced to 18 months in prison.

Maritime Trustees In 'Deal' with SIU

OTTAWA (CP)—H. W. Herdridge (NDP — Kootenay West) said Tuesday in the Commons there are suspicions in some quarters that the board of maritime trustees has made a deal with Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers' International Union of North America.

He asked that the trustees appear before the Commons in-

'Deep Concern' OAS Stand Unaffected By Demands

OTTAWA (UPI)—External Affairs Minister Martin said Tuesday Canada's re-evaluation of its position towards the Organization of American States has no relation to current demands for sanctions against Cuba.

Martin was asked in the Commons by Social Credit Leader Thompson whether Canada planned any action on its position because of the "widespread support" the Venezuelan suggestion of Cuban sanctions likely would receive at the OAS meeting.

Martin said the government had a "very deep concern" about the issue, but added that the OAS meeting itself would have no bearing on continuing consideration of Canadian membership in the organization.

Canada adheres to a policy of trade in non-strategic goods with Cuba.

Martin also said there had been no change of thinking on the part of the government which differed in any way from election campaign promises a year ago of immediate attention to OAS membership.

QUESNEL — Mayor Alex Fraser of Quesnel, president of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, said Tuesday he will contact the provincial government for clarification of its new winter works policy. Mayor Fraser said he has received calls from lower mainland communities with regard to the provincial government's announcement last week that it would only contribute to the salaries of persons who had been on welfare for three months or more.

PORTLAND — A tavern owner was accused Tuesday of killing her husband by running him down on the sidewalk with her car. Mrs. Wallace H. Dayton, 40, was charged after the death of her 38-year-old husband.

Diabetes Will Increase

TORONTO (UPI)—Longer life expectancy and improvements in the standard of living of many nations were two major factors contributing to the growing incidence of diabetes, a British medical authority told the World Diabetes Congress Tuesday.

Dr. W. J. H. Butterfield, of Guy's Hospital, London, said research indicated that diabetes would become more prevalent "as the world becomes more affluent."

The tendency for people to grow fat and contented as their standard of living improved, also contributed greatly to the number of diabetics, he said.

Old Theory Exploded By Bear

COQUITLAM (CP) — Mrs. Frank Links, 31, found out the theory of remaining motionless so a bear will pass you by, doesn't work.

The Coquitlam housewife was trying to take a picture of a bear in Manning Park near Hope.

"I didn't think it would harm me even when it started towards me, so I stayed where I was."

"I got an awful shock when the bear came right up to me and hit me on the leg."

Mrs. Links was released from hospital after treatment.

OTTAWA (CP)—Two Quebec MPs, struck back in the Commons Tuesday at their outspoken socialist colleague, Douglas Fisher, accusing him of stirring up anti-Quebec sentiment.

Paul Martineau, former Conservative mines minister, and Creditiste Leader Real Caouette denied Mr. Fisher's charges that certain Quebec MPs are playing "petty, dirty Quebec politics" in opposing the government's student loan bill. Mr. Martineau said Mr. Fisher (NDP — Port Arthur) tried to gag Parliament Monday with an "unfounded and disgraceful attack" on the Creditistes and Quebec Conservatives who oppose the students' legislation.

Bus Crash Kills Eight

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands (UPI) — Eight persons were killed when a small bus plunged over a 300-foot cliff into the sea near the town of Mogán.

namely, minor's right to sign contracts.

The strains on confederation would be aggravated if French-Canadians were treated as inferior partners or as pariahs.

Mr. Caouette said Mr. Fisher once again had demonstrated his prejudice against Quebec and his inability to understand the forces at work in that province.

He said the New Democratic house leader whips up ethnic animosity with his "bothead statements."

The Creditiste leader also took a swipe at Quebec Premier Jean Lesage, who he accused of being a hypocrite in forgetting his election promises and a lamb in his dealings with the federal government.

FREE TUITION

Mr. Lesage had promised free tuition at all levels of education in Quebec, but instead he was introducing student loans with interest charges.

Mr. Caouette said the federal and Quebec loan plans inevitably will lead to higher taxation. He favored printing more money through the Bank of Canada and handing it out as scholarships.

Fire Wardens Look to Future

CUMBERLAND—Immediate and long-range needs of the Cumberland fire department were outlined by fire wardens Monday at the village commission meeting, and the commission indicated some items may be bought this year.

The wardens said items required immediately include 1,000 feet of 2½-inch hose at $63 per 50 feet or a total of $1,260, more small nozzles, hose clamps, reverse couplings and other items.

Long-range plans include new tires for the ambulance and a new motor for No. 2 truck, whose present motor would go into the No. 1 truck to make it more powerful.

ALREADY ALLOCATED

Council agreed the items were necessary but said the only available money was already allocated in the budget.

However, if some other budget estimate has funds left over at some time closer to the end of the year, there might be a possibility of buying extra equipment.

FOR SOME TIME

Pied Piper Rodent Control advised the commission the old dump has been cleared of all rodents but this work should be continued every two months for some time to be fully effective. The commission decided to review the matter in October.

The commission also:

- Accepted the resignation of the dogcatcher effective Aug. 31. The sale of dogtags now will revert to the city.

- Learned the new village tractor will cost $3,250. In addition to grass cutting and trimming of roadside brush, it can be used for street brushing and snow removal from sidewalks providing attachments are bought.

Comox Valley

Building Rushed For Fair

COURTENAY — Plans for the new livestock building will be rushed with the goal of completion in time for the fall fair Sept. 4, 5 and 7, president Alex Simm of the Comox Valley Exhibition Association announced Tuesday.

The plans are in the hands of the association's building committee of John Larson, Gordon Pickard and Alec Brown.

PLYWOOD WALLS

Mr. Simm said the 48-foot by 100-foot building will be of truss-type construction and will have plywood walls.

Sheathing, roofing and interior work will be done by volunteer labor while cement work, truss work and beam positioning will be done by a construction firm still to be named.

MAXIMUM USE

Mr. Simm said the building committee will plan construction so the building can see maximum use throughout the year.

He said Agriculture Minister Richter and Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell will attend the opening of the fair on the evening of Sept. 4.

Sea Races Begin Sunday

A week-long series of races will be held on the west coast of Vancouver Island July 26 to 31 by the Norpac Ocean Racing Association.

The races will be held in the daytime and mariners are asked to navigate with caution in the following areas:

July 26—Neah Bay to Bamfield, July 27 — Bamfield to Ucluelet, July 28 — Ucluelet to Tofino, July 29 — Clayoquot Sound, July 30—Tofino to Turtle Island in Barkley Sound, July 31 — Turtle Island to Effingham Island in Barkley Sound.

NANAIMO—Mayor Pete Maffeo has signed a document which lays down the basic plan of action if the city is ever hit by a natural or military disaster.

The plan, drawn up by civil defence co-ordinator Dawson Gordon, requires the signature of another council member and the approval of the provincial government. It coordinates the work of all services, provides for orderly evacuation of the city and will be tested once approval is final.

DUNCAN—Officials of Kings Daughters' Hospital say the condition of Wallace Paige, 13, of Fairbridge, has improved to fairly good. He collided with a car driven by Adolph Nietsch of Duncan while riding his bike on Koksilah Road. The condition of Olivia Sholes, 61, of Ganges, whose husband died in a Salt Spring crash last week, is reported slightly improved.

FULFORD — Forty young YM-YWCA people from Portland, Ore., arriving aboard the vessel Pagan, were treated, during the weekend, to an Athletic Club wiener roast, a softball match, roller skating and a Fulford Inn dance. Buck Buchanan provided hot coffee in the early Sunday damp and other hosts were R. Akerman, Mr. and Mrs. J. Roland, Mrs. H. Kyler, Rosemary Bridgden, Jayney French and Mrs. Art Moulton.

NANAIMO — Four Tokyo students visiting B.C. through a student exchange program sponsored by the Central Vancouver YMCA were guests of Macmillan, Bloedel and Powell River officials at a banquet Tuesday night in Yellow Point Lodge.

Pearson Eyes Paper Strike

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Pearson said Tuesday he would look into reports that United States professional strikebreakers had slipped over the border to aggravate the newspaper strike in Toronto.

The strike, involving 680 members of the International Typographical Union and all three Toronto daily newspapers, now is in its 13th day.

Mutsuo Oikawa, Yoshinori Toyohara, Takehiko Suzuki and Keisuk Satoh will tour the company's Northwest Bay logging operations today.

DUNCAN — The combined Cowichan fraternal organizations will hold their annual picnic at the Moose Home at Quamichan Lake Sunday. Races, free pop, hot dogs and ice cream will entertain the children while softball and horseshoe pitching among the various organizations will be featured.

VICTORIA — Last rites will be held in Victoria today for two Salt Spring Island residents. Private services for Cecil Angus Milloy, who died Saturday, will be held in Hayward's at 10:30 a.m. Rites for Frederic Ivor Atkins, who died Monday, will begin in Chaplin's at 2 p.m.

PORT ALBERNI — Plans for a bus tour to north Island centres over roads recently opened on a limited access basis are being considered by the Alberni Valley Chamber of Commerce. Chamber president Mrs. Edna Souther asked Fred Duncan to obtain details from Vancouver Island Coach Lines after he suggested the trip to Port Hardy via the Campbell River-Gold River road and other logging routes.

DUNCAN — Junior sailors of the Maple Bay Yacht Club will race in sailboats, lightnings and Comets tonight at Maple Bay, at 7 p.m.

CIEMANUS — Winners of the first round of the annual Clarke and Son mixed two-ball foursome handicap event at Mount Brenton were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jansch, Mr. and Mrs. Al Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Urton and Mr. and Mrs. William Foulds. Frank Goldie and Mrs. Stuart Clement received a bye.

Lumbermen Generous To Cowichan Museum

DUNCAN—Lumber companies have contributed almost one-quarter of the eventual $200,000 cost of the new Cowichan Valley Forest Museum, a spokesman for the museum society disclosed Tuesday.

He called their response "remarkably gratifying" and said it indicates the great value the timber firms attach to the museum.

FIGURES GIVEN

Major donations from lumber firms: MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River $25,000, Pacific Logging $7,500, Hillcrest Lumber $5,000, Western Forest Industries $3,000, Van Dusen Foundation and Bloedel Foundation $2,000 each and Sooke Forest Products $1,000.

Another big gift, $3,000, came from the Duncan Rotary Club. Tracks for the narrow-gauge logging railroad on the 19-acre site at Drinkwater Road and Samenos Lake are being completed, but the spokesman said transfer of the entire Gerald Wellburn collection from Deer-holme will take another two years.

This will push the cost to $200,000, he said.

Duncan and North Cowichan have already pledged 45 per cent each and Lake Cowichan the other 10 per cent of the $37,000 cost of the museum site. The museum society plans to buy more land later, which will increase the value of the land to about $50,000.

Skrien Almost Quit

Lions' Den Serene Again

VANCOUVER (CP) — The game of musical chairs, which left wives of the British Columbia Lions out in the wet and caused head coach Dave Skrien to threaten to quit, has ended amicably.

The women will get seats equal to or better than those they occupied in Empire Stadium last season.

Skrien touched off headlines when he accused general manager Herb Capozzi of "a deli-erious attempt to undermine me" by moving the wives of players and assistant coaches from free seats in prime, covered positions to uncovered seats ranging from the end zone to the 20-yard line.

"I can't coach if I am undermined and I can only view this as a deliberate attempt by the general manager to undermine me. It may seem a small thing, tickets, but team harmony is being threatened and my authority is being challenged."

"If I let this go, I am dead

as a coach. This will kill me in the eyes of my football players."

Clayton B. Delbridge, club president, said the incident resulted from a misunderstanding. The wives' seats, previously scattered through several sections of the cavernous stadium, had been consolidated into one section, he said.

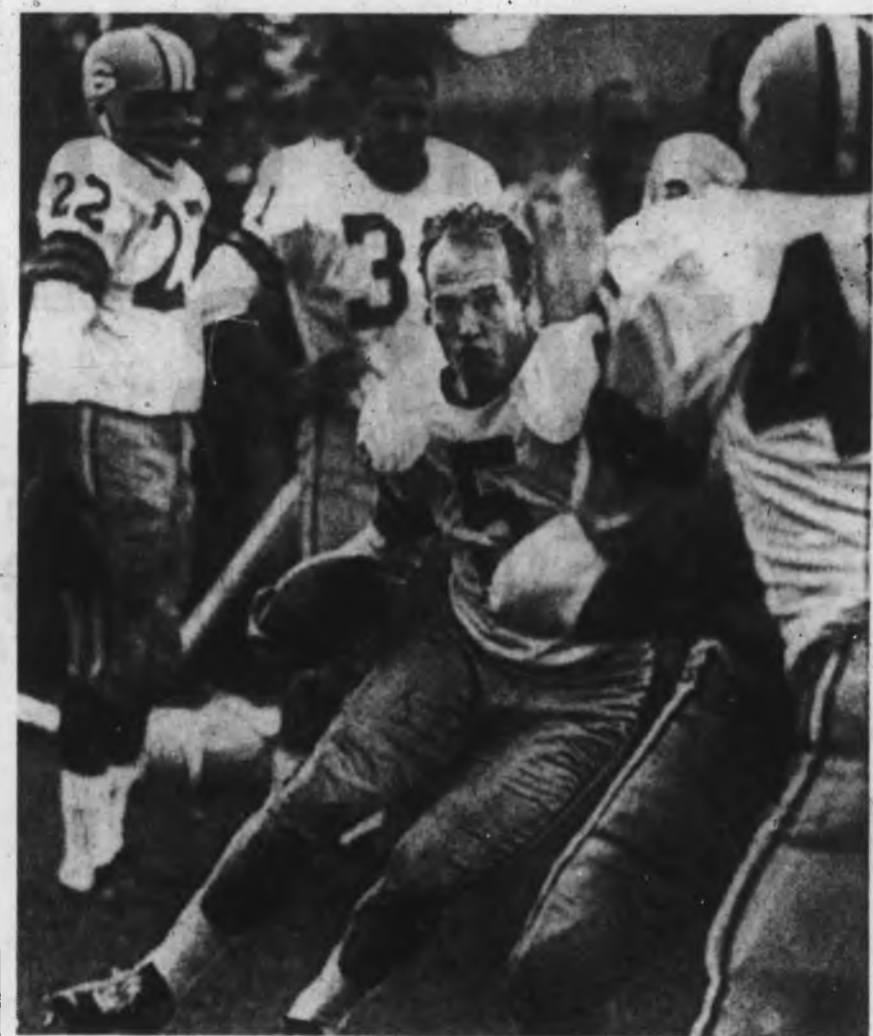

In view of the uproar, however, he would see to it that the wives were given seats equal to or better than those occupied last year.

Delbridge said he hadn't known until Saturday, when informed by Skrien, that the seats had been switched.

"It was news to me. I was at a loss to understand why they were moved after we had won the Western Conference. I can't understand why the players would get seats that were not as good as those they had last year."

"If I had moved them this year I would have moved them to better seats in appreciation of what their husbands did."

Orioles and White Sox Sent Reeling Yankees Take Over Once More

Baltimore Orioles and Chicago White Sox staggered out of an American League night game last night to find New York Yankees back in first place.

On a night when Yankees and Philadelphia Phillies were the only two of the major league's contending teams to win, the struggling Orioles were stopped twice, 4-2 and 8-5, by Cleveland Indians and the White Sox were dumped unceremoniously,

2-0 and 3-2, by Los Angeles Angels.

While all this was going on, Tom Tresh was stepping back into his old all-American boy role with the Yankees. He hit two home runs, doubled and scored in the sixth, and walked and stole second to lead the Yanks to a 7-1 victory over Washington Senators.

The Phillies got a little breathing space in the National League, moving one game in front with a 6-3 victory over Milwaukee Braves behind Jack Baldschun's sharp relief pitching.

Billy Williams' 23rd homer drove in both runs in Chicago Cubs' 2-0 win over San Francisco Giants, and Cincinnati lost its third straight game to New York Mets, 4-2. In those three games, all played at a time when the Reds could have moved in on the leaders, they have managed but four runs off Met pitching.

In other American League games last night, Kansas City handed Minnesota Twins their sixth straight loss, 5-4; Boston

Red Sox dumped Detroit 7-5, on Dick Stuart's three-run homer in the seventh inning.

Al Spangler's lead-off homer in the eighth off Don Drysdale was all Houston needed as the Astros and Bob Bruce beat the Dodgers, 1-0. A grand-slam homer by Jerry Lynch gave Pittsburgh an 8-4 win over St. Louis Cardinals.

Baldschun replaced Art Mahaffey with one out in the eighth, bases loaded and the Phillies leading Milwaukee, 4-2. He got the dangerous Hank Aaron on a force play which brought in one run, then retired Joe Torre on a tap in front of the plate.

Phillies then scored two unearned runs in the ninth to gain only their fifth victory in their last 14 games. Bobby Wine and Tony Taylor homered, and Wine singled in the winning run.

Johnny Roman's third homer of the night and a three-run homer by Woody Held triggered an eight-run uprising by Cleveland in the eighth inning of the second game against the Orioles. Romano had two homers and a double in the first game of the doubleheader.

Stuart's line shot into the left field screen for the Red Sox was his 100th hit and 24th home run, and fattened his RBI total to 84, tops in the major leagues.

AT THE 19th With Harry Young

The unseasonable weather—for Victoria at least—has had a mixed effect on the various local golf clubs.

First the repeated wet spells have produced a fine natural greenness, and the turf everywhere is in excellent shape. All this has been achieved without the expense of the heavy normal summer watering program.

But while most clubs will be saving considerably on their watering bills, they are mainly losing money heavily on a drop in green fee tickets.

The lack of sunshine has kept many visitors from sampling the local courses and so has cut down a lucrative source of revenue.

The Gorge Vale club says its sale of green fee tickets is down considerably.

"Sure, we have had a lot of good weekends," said Leo Derman, Gorge secretary, "but that is the time when our course is packed with members. We rely on good weather in mid-week to raise our green fee revenue."

Directors of the B.C. Golf Association will meet at Capilano Golf Club Friday evening, in which the main business is likely to be the selection of the B.C. junior team to play for the inter-provincial title at Charlottetown in September. Gary Smith, B.C. junior champion, and Ricky Kent, Victoria junior champion, are strong favorites for selection. The two Colwood boys were on last year's winning team.

Bill Mattick, as most people who patronize his par three golf course at Cordova Bay know, is a one-armed golfer, and a pretty good one at that.

This evening his star visitor is Joe Kirkwood, the Australian-American trick shot expert, and the two of them have arranged to play an exhibition game against Phil Taylor and Paul Trapp, past and present professionals at the Victoria Golf Club.

The point about the Mattick-Kirkwood pairing is that Joe is going to play all his shots standing on one leg only!

"I reckon we are going to be about the only golfing partnership to play with only three arms and three legs between us," says Mattick.

Prior to the match, Kirkwood will give his well-known trick golf show, starting at 7 p.m. . . . out at Mattick's, just beyond Cordova Bay.

It was too bad the weather let down Stan Leonard and his Junior Golf College so badly at Royal Colwood last week. The 130 youngsters who attended the course ran into one soaking after another in just about the most miserable July week we can remember in these parts.

A query from a member of the Alberni Golf Club, asking interpretation of the rules on striking an opponent's ball in match play.

The answer is that there is no penalty. In match play the person in play has the unquestioned control of the other ball. He may ask to have it lifted and if not it must remain as it lies. The opponent has no rights.

If the opponent's ball is hit, there is no penalty on either party for the opponent may have his ball replaced in its original position or he may play it as it lies, whichever suits him best.

This rule applies whether the balls are outside or inside the 20-yard radius that governs the flagstick rule.

Most people know the St. Andrew's old course so well that U.S. columnist Red Smith got a lot of us confused in his reference to the Bishop's Nose bunker near the Swinca Burn. I feel he must have meant the Principal's Nose trap which catches the drive played a little too far to the left to avoid the railway out of bounds at the 16th.

Named after an early principal of St. Andrew's University, who, it said, was a fair "auld devil." So's the trap that bears his name.

But the point Red Smith sought to make, that a caddy who knows the old course is a valuable asset is no exaggeration.

There is no other course I have played that is more difficult to chart, even after it has been played many times, and the old St. Andrew's caddies who not only know where the hazards lie, but are able to tell you how and where each shot should be played are among the great golf advisers in the world.

When I played golf at St. Andrew's in the 30s, these remarkable fellows were happy to carry your bag for four or five shillings, and if you took them into the Links afterward for a pint of beer, you were their prince.

In winning his first British Open, Tony Lema got hold of one of the best, and it was nice of him to acknowledge it.

Gorge Vale won its annual home and home match with Port Angeles by 55½ points to 39½, with a sweeping victory in the return game at Gorge Sunday. Al MacLeod with 69 and Bill Wakeham with 72 were particularly hot pair for the winning team.

The Capilano Club has offered to host the Seniors championship of Canada in 1965. The three previous championships have been held in Winnipeg, Quebec City and Montreal.

Esquimalt May Get Minto Cup

Esquimalt may get the Minto Cup if Victoria Junior Shamrocks make it to the Minto Cup Canadian junior lacrosse finals, they'll probably have to play it in Esquimalt Sports Centre.

With pro hockey returning to Victoria, the ice goes into Memorial Arena Sept. 15, and the Minto Cup series is scheduled for the home of the western winner starting Sept. 14.

Ice is in at Esquimalt now, and arena manager Joe Lannarelli had planned to leave it in until his commercial hockey starts in October.

"But if some kind of a deal can be worked out, I'd be interested enough to take it out for two weeks," he added.

Junior Rocks, who won the Minto Cup here in 1962 and lost out in the final last year in Ontario, are already assured of a berth in the B.C. final. Winner of that gets into the Minto Cup series, and the young Rocks are favored to make it again.

Independents Gain In Baseball Chase hits to lead Independents to a 4-1 Senior Amateur Baseball League victory over the Workers at Royal Athletic Park.

Independents went into the contest trailing Transports by three and a half games. A loss would have put them four and a half behind with the schedule running out.

Independents got all the runs pitcher Steve Bishop needed in the first inning. John Balloch walked, went to second on a passed ball and took third on an infield hit by Moody.

WILD THROW

Bob Holness laid down a squeeze play bunt to score Balloch on a close play at the plate. Moody rounded second and went to third where the throw was wild allowing him to score.

Independents picked up two more runs in the third, with Moody in on the scoring again.

Transports got their lone run in the fourth inning when Barry Harvey tripled in Gary Bishop.

No Contest As Willemse Wins Again

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP)—Herman Willemse, 30-year-old Dutch school teacher, won the 26-mile Atlantic City swim Tuesday in the record time of 10 hours, eight minutes and 15 seconds.

It was the fifth victory in the swim in five years for Willemse, who receives a $5,000 first prize. Willemse, a native of Utrecht, Holland, far outdistanced the remainder of the field, taking a 14-mile lead by the time the race was half over. Near the finish he was two miles ahead.

Probably only a well-aimed torpedo could have stopped the fast-swimming Dutchman.

Willemse set the former record of 10:30:15 in 1960.

Last year his time was 10:31:15.

Shamrocks Confident They Can Be Second

Victoria Shamrocks feel they can still finish in second place in the Inter-City Lacrosse League. This is the week they have to prove it.

Shamrocks play New Westminster tonight at Memorial Arena and Thursday in New Westminster. Two Shamrock victories would leave the clubs tied for second, and the Rocks can hardly afford anything less.

Following these two games, the clubs have identical schedules, meeting each other, Nanaimo and Vancouver in home and home series. If the games run true to the form established over the season, the Rocks almost have to win three of the four against New Westminster.

Shamrocks have beaten New Westminster twice in three tries here this season. On the mainland they have one overtime tie to show for three games, and haven't won a game at Queen's Park Arena in five years.

Rocks will be reasonably close to full strength, with only vacationing Ed Kowalyk and the injured Ron Jay missing.

Game time is 8 p.m.

Tonight coach Don Ashbee will use Junior John Hansen, who scored two goals Saturday in Nanaimo, on a line with Bill Bradley and Dick Crompton. Jim McNeill, Tom Collett and Bill Gray form another line, with Ashbee, Reg Foster and Jim Watson on the other and Bill Manroe available for spot duty and as point man on the power play.

Rocks will be reasonably close to full strength, with only vacationing Ed Kowalyk and the injured Ron Jay missing.

War on Pollution

Oyster Growers
Seek Purifier

COOPERATING

The provincial health department recently clamped restrictions on growers in the Sooke and Ladysmith areas after it discovered high bacteria counts in several oyster beds.

One official said this action has been accepted in a "very philosophical" fashion by the industry which has shown itself ready to co-operate fully. Oysters taken from restricted leases are being "purified" by relaying in clean water for a quarantine period of two weeks during which the oyster pumps itself free of excess bacteria.

menting with a salt-water well to supply his oyster shucking plant.

It has been proven to the satisfaction of health officials that the sand acts as a filter to remove bacteria from water and so render the well water acceptable, while the sea from which it is drawn remains polluted.

Consideration now is being given to establishment of large oyster tanks on the same principle as the salt-water well for the treatment of oysters.

Overseas oysters are treated by chlorination and exposure to ultra-violet light.

HIGH RATES

It has been shown, however, that high rates of pollution such as those which exist in Esquimalt Harbor and Deep Bay, near Fanny Bay, cannot be eliminated by these forms of treatment.

The total ban will become effective today in Esquimalt Harbor where David McMillan has had an oyster lease for 37 years.

STATUS UNCHANGED

Officials said there will be no change in status of either restricted or closed oyster leases until results from new bacteria counts to be taken in October are known.

At present 78 leaseholders work 2,527 acres of foreshore. In 1963 the marketed value of B.C. oysters was $781,000.

Courtenay Complex

22 Oppose
Drive-In

COURTENAY—A petition against one section of a three-part, $200,000 business complex proposed by a Nanaimo firm could mean cancellation of the entire project, it was learned Tuesday.

After listening to 22 petitioners Monday night, city council approved their request that no drive-in be allowed in the area where the complex is to be built—but called for a public hearing before the decision becomes final.

Nanaimo Realty plans a drive-in, a 32-suite apartment block and a service station at 10th and Cliffe, but reports said it might cancel the whole thing if one part is rejected.

Mike Mendria, owner of the Sleepy Hollow motel on Cliffe across from the drive-in site and one of the petitioners, said the noise, garbage and late hours would hurt his business and lower property values.

He asked councillors if they would want a drive-in next to their home or business and said his motel represents $200,000, or 15 years of hard work by his wife and himself.

Place for Hotrodders

Mr. Mendria claimed a similar drive-in in Nanaimo stays open until 2 a.m., is a gathering place for hotrodders and has damaged the business of a nearby motel.

He said the cost of policing would exceed tax revenue to the city.

George Manning, owner of the Anco Motel which is near the complex site, said the petitioners are not opposing the motel and are not trying to restrain trade. Another petition signed by 12 garage operators said Courtenay has enough service stations to serve the public and opposed opening new city areas to such stations.

Council agreed to restrict establishment of drive-ins to the Campbell River Road and Comox Road areas but called a public hearing in two weeks so property owners can give their views.

The petition from garage operators was turned down and council said service stations will be allowed on Cliffe from 10th to 17th.

Council also decided to limit commercial signs to the land or building where the business is conducted.

College Site Survey
To Begin This Month

VANCOUVER (CP)—The UBC team named recently to survey central Vancouver Island to decide if and where a regional college should be built will begin the survey this month, it was announced Tuesday.

Dr. Leonard Marsh, a UBC social work professor on loan to the college of education for the duration of the survey, will be assisted by an advisory committee of six education faculty members with Dean Neville Scarfe as chairman.

The new college could be located at Nanaimo, Duncan, Alberni, Qualicum, Ladysmith, Parksville or other mid-island centres.

The survey will be used as a pilot project for similar studies in other parts of B.C. It will study the economic capacity and potential of the area, needs and expectations in vocational training, probable future student enrollments and the needs of students after high school.

The area was designated in the Macdonald report on higher education as an appropriate region for a junior college.

The survey is being financed by several Island school boards in conjunction with UBC.

COURTENAY—A citizen with a complaint who was sent around a complete circle has finally gone to city council for help.

Courtenay resident Stan Williams wants compensation for damage done to his son's car when a storm sewer cover turned up as the car passed over it in the 700-block 8th Street. He claimed the cover was not sealed properly after recent paving.

Mr. Williams took his complaint to the city superintendent, who referred him to the paving contractor, who sent him to an insurance adjuster, who sent him back to the city superintendent.

Mr. Williams wrote to council. Aldermen decided Monday to turn the matter over to Mayor W. C. Moore for investigation and action.

Chamber Takes No Stand Now
On Amalgamation of Albernis

PORT ALBERNI—The Alberni Valley Chamber of Commerce decided Tuesday it will not take a stand now for or against amalgamation, and may not until after the Twin Cities vote on the issue Oct. 17.

The Chamber learned deputy municipal affairs minister J. Everett Brown will be in the Alberni Aug. 3 to meet the two councils and was urged to invite him to its meeting the next day.

AGAIN LATER

Chamber president Mrs. Edna Souther asked the question that sparked the discussion, main topic of the meeting, then agreed at the close that the matter would be raised again at a later date.

Mayor Les Hammer of Port Alberni made the disclosure about Mr. Brown's forthcoming visit and the suggestion that the deputy be invited to address the regular Chamber meeting Aug. 4.

MORE INFORMATION

He said the many phases of amalgamation—facts and figures—will become public property as information is gathered during the two councils' study.

He also indicated advertisements will be run to show in detail how each municipality will be affected.

PUBLIC MEETINGS

And Mayor Hammer said plans are being discussed to hold one or more public meetings near voting day.

Ald. Jack Perry expressed the opinion the chamber would be putting itself in an awkward position if it took a stand on the matter.

"It is an altogether different thing to take a position on this issue than it was on whether a vote should be held," he said. "I doubt if Port Alberni council will take a stand, although individual members may support or oppose amalgamation."

"We can't look at amalgamation as a purely financial issue," said Ald. Charles Blair of Alberni.

EYE ON FUTURE

He suggested the matter should not be considered from the viewpoint of next year's tax bill but rather with concern for the future of the area.

"It's not altogether a financial proposition," said Ald. Blair, "it's a logical step."

The Alberni alderman said some amalgamation questions will be answered in the next two weeks.

He disclosed the councils have copies of letters patent from municipalities which have been through the amalgamation process.

UNKNOWN FACTS

MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. official Ted Stroyan said he didn't think the chamber had enough information to take a stand.

"There are a number of economic facts which are not yet known," he said.

"I think we should take a stand," said Mr. Stroyan, "but only after we know the facts and figures."

COURTENAY — Mayor W. C. Moore, who last year urged a work-for-welfare rule in B.C., said Monday he doesn't think much of the provincial government's first step in that direction.

He told city council he considers the recent change announced by Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell, the local MLA, as of little value.

ONLY ON WELFARE

In future, said Mr. Campbell, B.C. will pay half of the wages of winter works projects employees providing they have been on welfare at least three months, and will pay nothing for those not on welfare.

Mayor Moore said Courtenay has only two or three able-bodied men on its welfare rolls and planned to hire many more for a sidewalk program.

The change will mean loss of the 25 per cent of wages paid previously by B.C. for all winter workers, he said, and the city may have to seek another form of federal aid.

WILL WAIT

Council decided to wait for further information, as promised in a letter from Mr. Campbell, before a formal protest is made.

Mayor Moore also disclosed not one lot has been sold in the 135-lot land assembly project completed last summer in the south end of the city.

As a result, Central Mortgage has agreed to put three lots in the hands of each local real estate firm to sell on the city's behalf. The area has all services plus underground wiring, and aldermen feel it will fill up once a few homes are built.

PUBLIC PARK

Council formally accepted a large lot in the 1800-block England Avenue given by retired carpenter Aaron Cooper as a public park. It will be named Ellen Cooper Park in memory of his wife.

Kinsmen were granted the use of Lewis Park for a giant bingo today in aid of the community health centre.

A city steam traction engine, unused for several years, was given to Edward Doughty on condition he keeps it in the district. He plans to repair it and display it at fall fairs and similar occasions.

NANAIMO—Action was taken by city council Monday night to end one traffic hazard—but complaints were received of several more.

Council approved the parking and traffic control committee's decision to adjust traffic lights on the highway through Nanaimo so they are in full operation until 2 a.m. They formerly switched to flashing red and amber at midnight.

WOMAN KILLED

Mrs. Mary Gold died after being hit in a crosswalk at Terminal and Comox April 24, minutes after the lights changed at midnight.

A coroner's jury recommended full operation of the lights 24 hours a day but RCMP officials suggested a two-hour extension was sufficient.

Meanwhile, the Princess

Royal PTA asked for an extension of the yellow light at Nicol and Milton and other busy intersections until traffic control signals are installed.

CROSSWALKS

The PTA also sought a stop or caution light at Selby and Fitzwilliam, along with larger school zone and crosswalk signs. Council sent the requests to the parking committee.

Owners of a medical building on Albert Street protested to council about the poor condition of the street and its shoulders. Council awarded a contract for 3,000 tons of asphalt pavement to Hub City Paving and Construction for $24,750.

WILL BUY TRUCKS

As part of the traffic program, council approved in committee the purchase of a dump truck and two pickup vehicles from General Auto Sales for $7,721, and decided to add more radio-telephone units to existing equipment in city vehicles.

Two major projects to ease downtown traffic congestion already are in progress.

Voters approved the Commercial Inlet development, which will provide parking for more than 180 vehicles in two years. And an urban renewal survey which will start soon in the waterfront area will include a study of traffic patterns.

BUDGET APPROVED

Council also approved the revised $154,100 annual budget of the civic recreation and properties commission.

The total includes the city appropriation of $99,600 and $5,000 from the city budget for the arena pipe replacement reserve fund.

Victim in Hospital Here

Polio Vaccine Rushed In

By A. H. MURPHY

All Royal Jubilee Hospital attendants who come in contact with Capt. George Hillier, in an iron lung as B.C.'s first poliomyelitis victim in two years, are being given Sabin oral vaccine as a precaution. At the same time, teams from the Vancouver Island health unit stationed at Alberni, are rushing over 65 miles of rugged road to bring oral vaccine to any possible contacts at Capt. Hillier's home in the Ucluelet-Port Alberni areas.

The condition of Capt. Hillier was said Tuesday to be slightly improved.

However, the chief of the Greater Victoria health unit, Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, said authorities are assuming Capt. Hillier has poliomyelitis until tests show differently.

Dr. Whitbread admits authorities are puzzled as to how Capt. Hillier could contract the disease in such a remote area as Ucluelet.

They are investigating the possibility that the disease was brought there by people from Quebec who were believed to have been in the district recently. There has been a recent outbreak of polio in Quebec.

The chief medical officer said it had been determined Capt. Hillier had never taken either Salk or Sabine vaccine. It was normal, he said, that a man of Capt. Hillier's age (60) would not have become immunized.

There was also the matter of isolation. Dr. Whitbread said he could understand how people in such remote areas might feel their chances of contagion were greatly reduced.

It was regular procedure, said Dr. Whitbread, for Island health teams to go into an area where it was suspected that polio had been contracted, to distribute vaccine to all possible contacts.

Meanwhile, many friends who either know him personally or who have heard of his exploits in rescuing people both from the sea and from the dense bush which covers so much of the west coast, have made inquiries about his welfare.

Citizens'
Status

Naturalized American citizens may reside outside of the U.S. indefinitely without losing their citizenship under a new Supreme Court ruling.

The effect of the decision is to void certain sections of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

REVERSALS POSSIBLE

Persons who once gained U.S. citizenship and later lost it by residing outside the country may be affected by the new ruling.

Individuals residing in B.C. who lost their U.S. citizenship under Sections 352, 355, 404 or 407 of the law should personally write to the U.S. Consulate General, 1030 West Georgia, Vancouver 5, if they are interested in regaining it.

Correspondence should be addressed for attention of the citizenship section.

The Harris Survey

Barry Gains in South

In a just-completed survey of a cross-section of American voters, Sen. Barry Goldwater has gained 10 percentage points in his race against President Johnson, as compared with the standings before the Republican convention.

However, Democrat Johnson still leads Republican

Goldwater by 64-36 percent. And this is still the widest lead enjoyed by any candidate for president in modern times at this stage of a campaign. Significantly, however, Goldwater has now surged into a clear lead in the south.

The same voters who were surveyed on the eve of the recent Republican convention were questioned immediately following Goldwater's acceptance speech. They were asked to express their choice between President Johnson and Senator Goldwater on the assumption that Governor Wallace of Alabama was not a candidate.

President Johnson's total has fallen from a high of 72 per cent, down 11 points to 61 per cent, before the undecided vote is allocated. Senator Goldwater has gained nine points, rising from 22 to 31 per cent. Of the current eight per cent who have not made up their minds, five per cent have a dominant Republican voting background, while the remaining three per cent tend to be more Democratic in their orientation.

In the final breakdown of 64-36 per cent, the undecided have been allotted on the basis of their past voting behavior.

The regional patterns show gains for the new GOP nominee in every section of the country. However, Goldwater's most spectacular advances have been scored in the south.

Results by Regions

Post-Convention
	Johnson	Goldwater
East	74%	26%
Midwest	64	36
South	45	55
West	69	31

Pre-Convention
	Johnson	Goldwater
East	80	20
Midwest	74	26
South	61	39
West	80	20

The sizable Goldwater gain in the south—a full 16 points in less than three weeks—is a sharp contrast to the small advance in the east, where Goldwater has moved up only six points.

In all cases, these shifts represent actual changes in attitudes by the same voters who were interviewed before the convention in San Francisco. Their new attitude shows how dramatically voters change their minds in the course of campaigns. This survey represents public opinion as of now. As the campaign unfolds, further shifts—one way or another—will be spotted and analyzed.

At any rate, in the days immediately following his nomination as the GOP standard-bearer Senator Goldwater has narrowed the wide gap that had existed between himself and Mr. Johnson. There is still a full 30-

Key Senators Spark Revolt

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater was faced with a budding revolt of party moderates Tuesday when both New York senators announced that they are withholding support for his national ticket.

There were indications that similar actions might be taken by some other GOP leaders. Senator Kenneth Keating, who made his statement here, said he had discussed his action with party leaders in other areas but "I would want them to speak for themselves."

STATE PLATFORM

Keating issued a statement and held a news conference here after his New York colleague, Senator Jacob Javits, announced that he was withholding support for the ticket of Goldwater and Rep. William Miller, who is also a New York Republican.

(See also Pages 3, 7.)

Both Javits and Keating called for the formulation of a state GOP platform. Both said they were not bolting the GOP and would continue as Republicans. Both held out hope—but apparently not much of it—that Goldwater might alter his position and policies so as to make it possible to support him.

NO COMMENT

Goldwater, working at home on the mail which has been piling up since his nomination in San Francisco last week, sent word, after the Javits announcement, that he would have no comment for the present.

In a separate news conference Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., told newsmen he thinks the withdrawal of Alabama Gov. Wallace from the presidential race may be of "material advantage" to the Goldwater campaign.

Even before the convention in San Francisco, Keating—who seeks re-election this fall—had indicated he would conduct his campaign independently if he decided to run for re-election.

Barry Wants 'Crash' Plans

Abandon Moon Race, Leave Space to Military

WASHINGTON — Senator Barry Goldwater has laid out a "realistic space program for America" in which "all manned space research should be directed by the military."

The Republican presidential candidate also said in a magazine article just came to light that the concept of a moon race "must be abandoned,

regardless of Kremlin propaganda."

He urged a slow, paced, less costly effort aimed at a manned lunar landing "much later" than the 1969 target date now scheduled. Total cost of the present program is estimated at $20,000,000,000.

The nation's manned space flight program is now almost exclusively in the hands of the civilian National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The agency was created in 1958 on the recommendation of then-president Dwight Eisenhower to keep peaceful uses of space separate from Pentagon programs.

The senator's views, the strongest and most detailed expressed by him on space, were contained in the June issue of Science and Mechanics, a popular science magazine.

In the piece, Goldwater also calls for two "crash" programs: one to develop the Nike-Zeus anti-missile missile and another to "develop the Laser as a weapon."

"Particular kinds of Lasers

could, with lethal certainty, vaporize enemy nuclear space weapons before they could harm our territory," he wrote. Lasers are intensely controversial.

'Several Years,' Says Judy

Health Plan Far Off

OTTAWA (CP)—A comprehensive system of medical and health care on a national basis appears to be several years off.

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said at the end of a two-day federal-provincial health ministers conference Tuesday she hopes to have a draft program ready for preliminary talks with the provinces early next year.

At the request of the provinces, the draft would aim at stage-by-stage implementation of some of the recommendations of the Hall royal commission on health services.

POLICY BY 1965
"We hope to be able by early 1965 to develop a policy of how much of the plan we would be in a financial position to offer the provinces," Miss LaMarsh told a press conference.

She said the federal and provincial governments accept the "inevitability" of medical care insurance. But she made it plain that the governing factor will be the resources available to the governments involved.

The Hall commission suggestion of provincial sweepstakes to help finance a plan was mentioned. "There was a laugh and that was that," she said.

WILL MOVE SLOWLY
The conference had shown "we will have to move rather more slowly than some would wish."

Meanwhile, she said, a technical committee will work on defining what kind of medical patient care should be covered in the current hospital insurance program.

The provinces had urged that mental and tubercular patient care be covered but "we gave them at this time no indication that now or in the immediate future we would be prepared to assume the cost."

The provinces also were to provide Ottawa with estimates of their spending on hospital construction between now and 1968, when current federal contributions end.

Lumber Load Slips Three Women Die

PRINCETON (CP)—Three women were fatally injured but five others persons, including four children, escaped late Tuesday when a lumber load tumbled from a truck on a highway curve and struck two cars passing at the time.

RCMP identified one of the dead women as Agnes Lydia O'Neill, 41, of Squamish. RCMP said a big diesel-tractor truck driven by Gerald Keegan of Richmond, loaded with lumber was rounding a curve going east 12½ miles east of here when parts of its load gave away.

The load tumbled onto a car going in the opposite direction and containing two women. They were fatally injured. A second car, following the first and containing Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill and their four children, also was struck by the tumbling lumber and plowed into the wreckage of the first.

Mrs. O'Neill was pronounced dead on arrival at Princeton Hospital. Her husband escaped with slight injuries and their four children were unhurt.

Truck driver Keegan stopped his truck after the accident and was not injured.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Club-swinging riot police clashed with hundreds of unruly Negroes in a racially-troubled area of Brooklyn Tuesday, firing gunshots into the air as they dodged bottles hurled from the mob.

At the same time, police suddenly sealed off a large section of Harlem, scene of racial violence which caused bloodshed for three previous nights, when unruly crowds began gathering at intersections.

The incidents came just hours after President Johnson ordered federal agents into Harlem, largest Negro community in the United States, and declared that U.S. citizens "have a right to protection of life and limb" whether in the rural south "or a street in New York City."

WORST INCIDENT

The incident late Tuesday in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn was by far the worst of the day and brought at least 200 police to the scene. The situation in Harlem was calm by comparison.

At one point, a bottle sailed from a crowd of Negro teenagers, narrowly missing a policeman. Seven patrolmen plunged into the crowd, swinging night sticks.

Four Negroes were knocked to the sidewalks, all of them bleeding. Two of the injured youths were identified as Herron Ward, 17, and James Walker, 15.

PATROLMEN PUSHED

The police then fired a volley of shots over the heads of the crowd for at least three minutes. Gradually, the mob was dispersed.

At 8 p.m. PDT, police broke up a large crowd of Negroes in Harlem at 116th St. and Seventh Ave. Officers were dispatched to other sections of Harlem to assist patrolmen being pushed around in scattered incidents.

A UPI reporter at the scene of the Brooklyn fighting was approached by three young Negroes. "Don't worry, man,"

NANAIMO (CP)—Barry Wait, 12, drowned Tuesday while swimming at a campsite near Yellow Point, 11 miles south of here.

'Wake Up OAS'

Cuban Exiles Protest

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cuban exiles clashed with police in a wild melee outside as the 20-nation inter-American conference convened Tuesday amidst growing sentiment for total diplomatic and trade isolation of Fidel Castro's Cuba.

As the foreign ministers began their four-day meeting to consider sanctions against the Communist Caribbean nation, several hundred Cubans—among some 5,000 who set out to stage a peaceful demonstration—fought and struggled with scores of police.

They threw stones, they jeered and cheered. They chanted "Cuba Si, Russia No." They carried banners saying in both English and Spanish, "We Save Cuba or We Lose America."

"Wake Up OAS," said another banner, referring to the Organization of American States.

Only quick action by mounted patrolmen who rode into the crowd broke up the melee.

Communal Clashes Shake Singapore

SINGAPORE (Reuters)—Four persons were killed and 178 injured in six hours of communal clashes between Malays and Chinese here Tuesday.

Police reported the fighting had stopped after a curfew was imposed on the island.

POLICE CALLED

Hundreds of police were called out as the fighting spread. Stores and street stalls owned by Chinese were wrecked, cars overturned and motorcycles and trishaws—three-wheeled rickshaws—were thrown into storm drains.

Speaking in a television broadcast Tuesday night, Singapore's Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew said some persons "probably with Indonesian co-operation," had been exploiting the atmosphere "brought on by propaganda in the past few months."

Scores Moral Victory Over Smuggling

Kremlin Pulls Plug on Water Polo Team

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union's water polo team has been disbanded for smuggling foreign clothing into the country and will not go to the 1964 Olympic Games.

The team recently returned from a disastrous foreign tour that included losses to Romania and Yugoslavia, two ties, and only one victory.

tacked 10 of the 11 players as well as the coaches.

"They had no time to think of the outcome of the sports matches while goods for smuggling waited under their beds in the hotel," Komsomolskaya Pravda said.

The paper said the team was stopped at a Soviet customs checkpoint while returning from the trip.

"They turned white at the cus-

tom's house when asked to open their suitcases," the newspaper said. "Their suitcases were full of foreign goods... Who needs so many clothes?"

"The water polo players tried to explain they bought them for their poor relations. That's a lie!"

"They were bought not for presents but for speculation (a serious crime in the Soviet Union). There was only one sportsman who did not exchange his dignity for the foreign rags," Komsomolskaya Pravda said.

The team, according to the newspaper, has been "disbanded for... losing the honor of Soviet sportsmen."

Another team will be recruited for the "four-year road to the Olympics," the newspaper said, indicating no effort would be made to form another team in time for this year's Olympics.
